JAPAN DEFIES RUSSIAN DEMAND FOR SATISFACTION IN RAID ON OFFICE, THEFT OF RECORDS AT TIENSIN

GOVERNOR BARS TAX INCREASES IN FALL SESSION

Redistribution Favored by Rivers; Will Veto
Any Bill Providing for Higher Levies; Experts
Called To Draft Plans.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE HAS NO PROGRAM

Special Committee To Meet and Decide on Kind of System To Be Asked of Next Assembly.

Governor Rivers indicated yesterday that he will veto any tax measures passed by the forthcoming general assembly which increase rather than redistribute the load now being borne by a minority of Georgia's citizens. The Governor said he felt that the session should confine itself to a revision of the tax structure rather than increasing taxes.

The chief executive did not say that he does not favor new taxes. It is known that he does, particularly new taxes which will reach a class of citizens not now contributing to the support of the state. Governor Rivers said: "I have stated on numerous occasions that I favor a revision of the tax system of our state. I have never said and I do not say now that I favor an increase in the tax load on those who already are paying."

Has No Specific Plan.
The Governor said he would not attempt to lay before the assembly any particular plan for broadening of the tax scope and thereby lessening the load on the few now paying. He said he intends first to call to his office a special tax committee appointed by the legislature and meet with it to work to find out just what sort of a system should be set up. He also said:

"I hope this committee will hold a series of meetings with all groups interested in the tax question. They should meet with merchants, farmers, bankers and representatives from all walks of life." Governor Rivers added that he hoped to sit in on most of the meetings of the tax committee, saying that his participation would depend on the pressure of his other duties.

Headed by Jackson.
The special legislative committee is headed by Senator Guy Jackson, of Cochran. The committee recently completed a tax survey of nearly a dozen states, most of which already have a sales tax. It is understood that the committee plans a visit to Indiana where the gross receipts tax, another levy widely sought for Georgia, is in effect. Governor Rivers repeated that he does not plan to call a special session of the assembly before Thanksgiving and it is known that he does not anticipate the session extending beyond Christmas.

The chief executive said that he

Five Convicts Escape From Brantley Gang

The week's first report of escapes from Georgia chain gangs was received last night when Atlanta police were notified five prisoners had taken French leave of the Brantley county gang near Hartselle.

The break was made about 8 o'clock yesterday morning but no details were conveyed to local police or to the prison commission. Among the escapes was James Hargis, 24, sent up from Walker county for murder.

Other fugitives are Ned Owens, 32-year-old negro, under a burglary sentence from Ware county; W. J. Brown, 23, under sentence from Bibb county for auto theft; C. L. Riley, 22, under similar sentence from Chatham county; and Jack Malone, 22-year-old negro, convicted of robbery in Baker county.

Auto Wreck Suicide Hinted In Report Filed by Officer

Hospital Patrolman R. L. Mosley States Woman Told Him Tom Fouts, Killed Early Yesterday, "Deliberately Wrecked the Car in an Attempt To Kill Us Both."

In a special report, filed last night with Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby, a hospital patrolman reported he had been told early yesterday morning by Miss Hazel Boles, of Buford, that the death of Tom Fouts, 30, of Suwanee, Ga., in an automobile accident near Buford, was an apparent case of suicide.

Fouts was brought to Grady hospital and pronounced dead on arrival. A "mercy" car taking him to the hospital was involved in a second crash in which Lane Cox, of Brookhaven, was seriously injured.

According to a report filed by Patrolman R. L. Mosley, hospital patrolman, Miss Boles, after treatment at the hospital, told him that "Fouts deliberately wrecked the car in an attempt to kill both of us."

His report continued: "She said that Fouts, because of several charges pending against him in the city court of Buford and in federal court at Gainesville, was going to have to go to the chain gang and that he was going to crash the car head-on with another machine and kill them. She said she had begged him not to until his son and Raymond Smith, 16, of Buford, were allowed to get out of the car. She said that Fouts did almost 'hit one car and didn't see how he missed it.' Shortly thereafter, she said, while traveling at high speed he suddenly cut the car from the road and it overturned several times, finally landing in an upright position on the road."

The dead man's son, J. D. Fouts 11, and Miss Boles were brought to the hospital in another car. Both were treated for back and head injuries which did not necessitate their remaining in the hospital. Miss Boles, according to Mosley's report, is 22 years old.

Fouts was being brought to the hospital by Lane Cox, Frank Cox and Warren DeVoe, of Brookhaven. Their car overturned as the result of a blowout, on Peachtree road and the new Buford highway. Frank Cox and DeVoe did not require hospital treatment.

Hospital attaches said Fouts had apparently been killed in the first wreck. Those in the second car wrecked said they found Fouts lying in the road and that his car had apparently turned over several times.

HIT-RUN CAR KILLS
E. LEONARD TANNER
A speeding hit-and-run roadster struck and killed E. Leonard Tanner, 66, of 183 Richardson street, as he was crossing the street at Fair and Kelly last night to board a street car for home.

Witnesses said the car knocked the man at least 10 feet in the air and sped away without stopping.

29 A car driven by C. D. Johns, of 483 Walden street, went in pursuit of the hit-and-run car, chased it for several blocks before losing sight of it near Peters and McDaniel streets. The driver of the pursuit car bumped the hit-and-run car several times in an effort to lock bumpers and halt its flight.

They gave the police a full description of the hit-and-run machine, including the license number. They said two men and two women were riding in the car and that the car stopped long enough during the chase to let the women out.

Surviving Tanner are four sons and four daughters.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Henry M. Blanchard.

2 Killed and 2 Injured As Planes Hit in Air

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two men were killed and two critically injured in a collision of two airplanes preparing to land at Dyer airport here tonight.

The break was made about 8 o'clock yesterday morning but no details were conveyed to local police or to the prison commission. Among the escapes was James Hargis, 24, sent up from Walker county for murder.

Other fugitives are Ned Owens, 32-year-old negro, under a burglary sentence from Ware county; W. J. Brown, 23, under sentence from Bibb county for auto theft; C. L. Riley, 22, under similar sentence from Chatham county; and Jack Malone, 22-year-old negro, convicted of robbery in Baker county.

RECESS SELECTION OF JUDGE OPPOSED BY COURT ALLIES

Vandenberg Suggests Asking President Roosevelt
To Fill Vacant Post
When Senate Can Okay
Appointment of Justice.

SENATE EXPECTS BENCH BILL TODAY

Cummings Rules Executive Can Fill High Court Vacancy Either Now or
When Congress Adjourns

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A White House announcement that President Roosevelt has been advised he can fill the present supreme court vacancy after congress adjourns stirred up a hornet's nest today among senate foes of his defeated court reorganization bill.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, proposed that the senate go on record against an after-adjournment appointment. He suggested it adopt a resolution declaring the President should nominate supreme court justices when it is possible for the senate to pass upon them before the nominees serve any time on the high bench.

Cummings' Ruling.
White House officials announced that Attorney General Cummings, in an informal opinion, has ruled that the chief executive can fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Willis Van Devanter on June 2, either now or after congress adjourns.

Although Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, said Mr. Roosevelt had not decided when he will name Van Devanter's successor, some senators assumed the President intends to fill the vacancy by a recess appointment.

Senator Burke, democrat, Nebraska, one of the leading opponents of the President's proposal to reorganize the supreme court, said if a recess appointment is made and the nominee takes his place on the court before being confirmed, he will consider that sufficient grounds to vote against confirmation.

Ashurst Opposes Move.
Even Chairman Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, of the senate judiciary committee, who supported the President's court bill, commented that "a wise man would not do it."

'FRAUD' CHARGED IN HOUSING BILL

George Questions Measure's Value To Rural Area in Wagner Debate.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—In a sharp debate today over the value of the pending housing bill to rural areas of the country, Senator George, of Georgia, and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, were both called to order by the president pro tem of the senate for allegedly reflecting upon each other's character.

Shortly after the New Yorker had obtained the floor to explain the provisions of his bill, Senator George placed question after question to him as to how the measure could be administered as far as rural homes were concerned, none of which was answered to the satisfaction of George.

To Aid All Slums.

Wagner insisted that his bill was designed to help rural areas slums as well as city slums, or any place where slums existed, but George was equally insistent that there were no housing authorities in Georgia, Alabama or Florida, to obtain the necessary funds from the federal government and that no loan or grant of any kind could be made except to a state or a municipality or a housing agency. The New York senator, however, explained that the senate assumed the municipality or state, or some political subdivision in which farms were located, had some form of housing authority.

At this point in the debate, Wagner's colleague, Senator Copeland, intervened to say he wasn't familiar with the housing conditions in Georgia, but that in New York, Michigan and other states, there

Hundreds Seek To Assist in Rescue of Sewer Victim

Hundreds of persons, attracted by a desire to aid in rescue work, crowded Rawson street between Central avenue and Pryor streets yesterday afternoon to watch and aid police and neighbors as they attempted to rescue eight-year-old Herschell Rogers, of 154 Rawson street, who was swept through a storm sewer while playing in a street pond. The arrow points to the sewer opening, hidden by the crowd.

HOUSE RULES BODY OPPOSES PAY BILL

Cox, of Georgia, Doubts
If Committee Will Report Measure to Floor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Representative E. E. Cox, Camilla, Ga., Democrat, said today the house rules committee, of which he is a member, was "unfriendly" to the wage-hour bill.

Cox, an opponent of the measure, said it was doubtful whether the committee would agree to its consideration in the house.

The house, despite the rush to clean up the administration program and adjourn, probably will delay debating the bill until next week.

Complete New Draft.
Its labor committee virtually has completed a new draft much broader than the senate measure, but will meet again tomorrow for further consideration.

Chairman Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, said the bill would be reported to the house not later than Wednesday. Leaders have arranged, however, to take up legislation for sugar production control on Thursday.

The house draft of the labor standards bill would permit a proposed board to fix minimum wages as high as 70 cents an hour and a work week as low as 35 hours.

House Bill Broadens.
This contrasts with the limitations of 40 cents and 40 hours in the bill which won senate approval Saturday by a vote of 56 to 28.

While administration leaders expressed confidence the house would pass some sort of wage and hour bill, there were indications the labor committee's draft would stir controversy.

Southern Democrats privately expressed opposition to allowing the labor standards board as wide latitude in fixing wage minimums and hour maximums as is proposed.

They expressed concern that the bill would affect adversely their region's industrial growth.

Two Trainmen Killed In Freight Collision

DAYTON, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two men were killed and a third was critically injured today as a Southern railway work train and a freight train collided at Sale Creek, near here.

The dead are L. Wilson, 43, fireman of the work train, and Paul Early, a switchman on the train, both of Chattanooga.

Charles Hilton, 55, engineer of the work train, received steam and hot water burns about the body and a fractured hip. His condition was said to be "extremely critical."

Southern railway officials were investigating.

Lark Fulton, farmer, said he witnessed the crash. "The work engine was backing up slowly with its tender toward the freight," he said. "I guess the freight was making about 30 miles an hour."

Boy at Play Loses Life In Big Sewer

Sister and Playmate See Tragedy; His Parents
Grief Stricken.

Lured too close to an open sewer by a childish desire to wade in a street water pond, eight-year-old Herschell Rogers, of 154 Rawson street, yesterday afternoon was sucked through the opening by heavy rainwaters and swept to his death as a sister and playmate screamed for help.

Frantically, Loraine Marshall, his sister's chum, leaped to pull the child to safety, but too late. Twice previously she had cautioned Herschell not to venture too near the sewer opening; twice he paid her no heed.

The opening is on Rawson street between Central avenue and Pryor street.

Last night, through tear-stained eyes, she blamed herself for his death. Efforts of parents and playmates failed to calm her.

Body Caught in Tree.
Herschell's body was found caught in a tree limb jutting into a creek near the federal penitentiary. That was about two miles from where he was pulled into the sewer.

Police and fire department first-aid squads worked for an hour to revive the boy. They used pulmotors and artificial respiration. A doctor from the federal prison administered two shots of adrenalin, but the little body failed to respond.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, the parents, collapsed when told of the tragedy. Doctors gave both sedatives and they were calmed by forced sleep during the afternoon.

Two Girls With Him.
Little Herschell wanted to play in the rainwater which had backed up in the street about a block from his home. His sister Gladys and Loraine accompanied him. It was around 12:30 o'clock, just after the heavy morning rain had backed water about three feet deep in the street near the small opening.

Loraine cautioned Herschell not to go close to the opening where the suction was great. Twice she pulled him back. The third time he had gone too far before she

8,000 TRUCKMEN HEED STRIKE CALL

Philadelphia Mayor Declares State of Emergency; Police Called.

By the Associated Press.
One-third of Philadelphia's trucks were ordered off the streets yesterday by the American Federation of Labor's teamsters' union in a strike call of drivers and helpers.

The order was given in support of a strike to organize drivers of trucking firms under contract to haul merchandise for The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

The union said 8,000 drivers and helpers were involved.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson immediately declared a state of emergency and ordered the director of public safety to summon all available police for duty.

Violations Denied.
At Buffalo operators of three strike-bound packing plants yesterday denied charges they had violated the Wagner labor act by refusing to bargain collectively with employees and challenged CIO leaders to call an election to determine if the union represents a majority of the workers.

Strike leaders intensified picket lines at the three plants as employers started a "back to work" movement among the 1,200 idle butchers and meat cutters who walked out 13 days ago demanding a closed union shop and wage increases.

The newly formed Independent Labor Federation of America last night planned a membership drive which it hoped would enroll 10,000 workers by the end of the year.

Plans for Drive Under Way.
Gerald Havill, of the Stromberg Carlson Employees Protective Association in Rochester, who was made a director of the new federation, revealed that plans for the drive were under way but would not comment further.

Meanwhile representatives of a score of CIO unions formed a board of strategy yesterday in New York to aid the CIO shipyard workers' two-month-old strike in the New York-New Jersey harbor area.

Waterfront activities ceased for 30 minutes yesterday in most major Pacific coast ports in the Pacific maritime federation of the Pacific

JAPANESE BLAMED FOR ORGANIZATION OF ATTACK PARTY

MAJOR OFFENSIVE IS EXPECTED SOON

Japanese Troops Now

Are Moving Southward.

MOSCOW, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Japan tonight disclaimed any responsibility for raid of the Soviet consulate at Tientsin by White Russians, in answer to Moscow's "determined" protest.

Japan's ambassador, Mamoru Shigemitsu, told the foreign office that his nation could not be expected to comply with the Russian demands for punishment of the raiders, return of records and other property seized by them and compensation for damages.

Soviet authorities said the White Guard attackers were organized by Japanese intelligence service men. The White Russians are opposed to the Soviet regime.

While a formal protest was to be delivered at Tokyo, oral representations were made to the Japanese embassy at Moscow.

No Japanese Aid.
Shigemitsu, instructed by his government, replied: "1—The raid occurred in the old Russian quarter of Tientsin, over which Japanese had no control."

"2—The raid took place amid confusion and amid fighting there (involving Chinese and Japanese, for control of the city which is Japan's North China garrison headquarters)."

"3—The raiders all were Russians. Soviet dispatches from Tientsin said that there also Japanese, who apparently to advantage of the confusion to attack the consulate."

"4—The Japanese at the time were occupied only in trying to restore order."

Japanese Sided.
The ambassador summed up Japan's attitude, as transmitted by his foreign office, by saying the incident was strictly a conflict between the red and white Russians.

"Japan has no interests in troubles between the Russians," Shigemitsu said.

While Soviet officials spoke of a "determined" protest they gave no indication how far they would carry their demand for satisfaction.

The incident widened the international complications of the North China conflict, involving the Soviet for the first time. It clashed with Japan over Amur river islands on the Siberian-Manchurian frontier last June.

Chinese Sympathetic.
Chinese circles reported the Kremlin's policy in the North China fighting has been strictly neutral so far as aid was concerned although the Soviet evi-

ONCE-LOST SEAMAN HOPES FOR AMELIA

Veteran of Waters Thinks Long-Missing Aviator Landed on Atoll.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Conviction that Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, may still be alive was voiced today by James Innes, of Bronxville, who was marooned for two months in 1936 on Christmas Island, remote coral atoll in the South Seas.

Innes said visibility in the southern climes is so deceptive that navy planes may have flown directly over the lost world fliers without spotting the castaways. He declared the refraction of the tropical sun's rays from rocks and sands causes mirages that make it impossible sometimes "to see folks 50 feet away."

Cast up on the island with Innes when their ship foundered on reef were 22 whites and 33 Chinese. Five of their number piloted a small boat to Fanning Island, 195 miles distant, where a cable station summoned aid. All were rescued.

ALABAMA FARMERS MAP WAR ON PESTS

1,000 Meet for 4-Day Meeting;
Will Hear Bankhead,
Black, Graves, Cobb.

AUBURN, Ala., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Alabama farmers, almost 1,000 strong, began today a four-day meeting in which they will plot annihilation of crop pests and improvement of rural life through latest scientific methods.

There'll be strengthening of organization, too, with the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and the state council of Home Demonstration Clubs holding annual convention in conjunction with the annual farmers' week.

Insect and poison displays, pamphlets on control methods, and conferences and addresses will feature an antipest campaign which the state agricultural extension service hopes to revitalize on a wide-scale basis.

The Argentine weevil, latest agricultural menace, will be on display, along with boll weevils and other insects.

J. M. Robinson, entomologist at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, will lead the drive to gain support of a state-wide "war" on pests, which annually cause hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage to all forms of vegetation.

The farmers' week meeting, officially opened tonight, will feature a series of addresses by men prominent in national agriculture and politics. Among them will be United States Senators Black and Bankhead, of Alabama; Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama; Cully Cobb, former southern AAA chief, and Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

MOSCOW ANGERED BY JAPANESE RAID

denced sympathy with the Chinese.

The Russian Tass News Agency said in a Tientsin dispatch Chinese police abandoned the neighborhood when Japanese troops occupied the sector around the consulate on July 20.

Russian White Guards described as "agents of the Japanese intelligence service under a Japanese staff officer, Major Taki," then began forming a "bandit detachment for a raid on the Soviet consulate and to assassinate the staff," Tass said.

A band of White Guards and Japanese armed with machine guns invaded the building of the Soviet consulate.

"The bandits broke the door and began to carry away consulate property in trucks," Tass said.

"A detachment of Japanese troops was stationed near by, where there formerly were Chinese police. They refused to let anybody pass."

"Meanwhile, trucks were loaded with property of the Soviet consulate and allowed to pass in the direction of the Japanese concession."

Before the raid, Tass' Tientsin correspondent said, the Soviet consul, Smirnoff, notified the Japanese consul, Kiki, of preparations for the attack and asked urgent measures to avert it.

Kiki was quoted as telling Smirnoff that he was informed of the danger at a conference of the consular corps on July 30, but that he was unable to do anything about it because the telephone was interrupted.

CHINESE DIG IN FOR TANGCHOW BATTLE

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)
TIENTSIN, (Tuesday) Aug. 3.—Japanese motorized columns drove southward toward Tangchow today to head off concentrations of the Chinese central government in that strategic city.

Three trainloads of central government troops reached Tangchow, 60 miles south of Tientsin, during the night and moved into positions behind remnants of General Sung Cheh-yuan's 29th army which were reformed at Machang after being driven from the Peiping area by Japanese.

Digging Trenches.
Japanese air scouts, who reported the movement, said that the Chinese were building trench systems.

General Kiyoshi Katsuki, Japanese commander, immediately dispatched motorized regiments to confront the Chinese "who will be dispersed later by aerial bombardment if they fail to withdraw peacefully."

The Central Agency also said Chinese military operations had extended far to the northwest of Peiping where Nanking government divisions had entered Kalgan, principal city of Chahar province. The Nanking divisions were part of the army of Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, pacification commander for Shansi and Suiyuan provinces. Japanese had no confirmation of the report.

Memories of 'Gay Nineties' Revived by Wall Painting

RUSSIA IS EXPECTED TO ASSIST CHINESE

U. S. S. R., Analyst Writes, Will Help Japanese With Many Clashes.

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

TOKYO, Aug. 2.—Soviet Russia, the "unknown factor" in the present armed struggle between Japan and China, might at any time throw the whole weight of the vast Russian war machine on the side of the Chinese republic—but it is most unlikely.

Moscow's policy, in all probability, will be that of helping the Chinese very effectively, but in a most indirect way. This will be done to some extent by the supplying of arms.

What will be of great aid, and what the U. S. S. R. is most likely to do, is to see that there is a succession of "incident after incident" along the extensive Siberian-Manchukouan and the Outer Mongolia-Manchukouan borders. These incidents, in the nature of armed clashes between border patrols, will be so frequent and so serious that they will force Japan to keep a considerable number of troops in these border regions and so prevent Tokyo from employing them against the Chinese armies in the field of battle.

Not only will many Japanese soldiers be needed to guard the borders, but the Tokyo government dare not leave the whole of Manchukuo unguarded. There are some 30,000 Chinese in that empire. The loyalty of these 30,000, 000 is more than open to question. With Japan fighting the Chinese, men of their own blood and bone (unless Japan keeps Manchukuo strongly garrisoned) it is almost certain that open revolt will break out.

of the Soviet consulate general which was raided yesterday.

Generally Calm.
As the situation stood early today, North China was generally calm and the Japanese army was in almost undisputed control of Hopei and Chahar provinces.

Both Chinese and Japanese admitted, however, that fighting on a major scale between the powerful German-trained armies of the central government and the Japanese was "almost inevitable" during this week.

First regiments of the 30,000 Japanese concentrated yesterday around Fengtai, southwest of Peiping, for a drive on the central government's divisions in the Peoting-fu area, were moving farther south and forcing the Chinese to withdraw.

Moving Southward.
The Japanese, dominate the whole railway area in the Peiping-Tientsin zone and were moving slowly southward along the Tientsin-Pukow and Peiping-Hankow railways. They will continue advance until the Chinese retreat south of the Yellow river—the natural southern boundary of the new empire which Japan is creating in North China—was considered certain.

FINAL RITES PLANNED FOR PASCHAL F. HARDIN

Funeral services for Paschal F. Hardin, 42, of 326 Flat Shoemaker avenue, S. E., will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Martha Brown Methodist church, East Atlanta, with the Rev. T. T. Hunnicutt officiating. Burial will be in East View cemetery, under the direction of the Barrett funeral home, Bolton.

Mr. Hardin died Sunday afternoon of a heart attack while he was driving his wife and two sons home from a visit to friends in East Point. His car, stopped by a telephone pole on Cleveland street, East Point, after he lost control. No one in the car was injured in the collision.

MRS. ANDREW FIORE

Mrs. Andrew Fiore, wife of the district superintendent of Electrical Research Products, Inc., died Sunday night in a private hospital. She lived at 1765 Peachtree street. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Sacred Heart church, with the Rev. Father Edward P. McGrath officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are four brothers, Joseph, Patrick, John and Thomas Lawlor, all of Philadelphia.

Picture Painted on Plastering In 90's Found in Decatur Home

Mrs. A. S. Risley Plans to Have Chromo Redone and Left

An art note of the "Gay 90's," when men and women wore flannels up into April echoed in Decatur yesterday with discovery of a hidden painting on wall plastering found when workmen stripped away a layer of wall paper in the old Grant home at 312 East Ponce de Leon.

The painting, in the hallway, "hangs" directly above an inner door. It represents one of those pastoral, with a couple of none-descript in one corner apparently fishing. In the background is an old mill. In the right foreground another party is fishing from a boat.

Remodeling Old Home.
Mrs. A. S. Risley is remodeling the old home, built in 1890 by the late Ed Grant. Mrs. Risley intends to have the virtual chromo redone and preserved in its place in the remodeled home.

A friend of Mrs. Risley, ventured the opinion that the painting was done by the late Mr. Grant who headed a sign business. To him also she ventured to ascribe the rather ornate stenciling of walls and ceilings, in conventional design, and perhaps typical of the period when a house was just a house, barring gingerbread work when it became a "mansion."

Such stenciling, said Grady Knight, the workman who brought the picture to light, is quite common in homes of that period. He said:

"I've been told that nearly every house constructed in that period had a picture like this one somewhere in it, painted right on the plastering. I've seen some myself."

"This house is as sound as the day it was built. You can't buy lumber like that now."

It was, he said, all heart timber. Mrs. Risley recently purchased the house from the Finney estate which had bought it from J. Harold Green. As her plans were explained, she intends to have the walls repapered to leave the painting in its position of honor so as to give the visitor on a hot day a refreshing glimpse of cool shades and thickets down by the old mill.

2 GIRLS SUCCUMB TO 5-FLOOR FALL Daring Rescues Fail To Save Victims' Lives.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two little girls who fell five floors into a 10-inch space between two apartment buildings today while at play on the roof, died after emergency squads rescued one with a lowered rope, and battered through a brick wall to reach the other.

Lorraine Chinchar, 10, died of a skull fracture and other injuries soon after a courageous hospital intern, lowered from the roof by a rope, managed to remove her from the cramped area into which she fell.

Later at the hospital where both girls were taken Marilyn Murphy, 9—who managed to smile weakly and thank policemen who battered through a thick brick wall to reach her—also died.

PUBLISHER'S SON BELIEVED IN WEST

Missing Youth Quit Job To Seek Own Fortune, Former Employer Says.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—An indication that 19-year-old Alfred A. Knopf Jr., missing son of a nationally known New York book publisher, went into the west to seek his fortune came tonight from his Norwood employer.

John L. Ladd, general manager of the Plimpton Press, in Norwood, announced the youth had written him last week.

"I am off on my own and you will not hear from me until I make good."

Announcement of word from the boy came as police in eight states began a search.

"Young Knopf quit his job Monday, July 26, to seek his fortune," Ladd said tonight.

"When he did not appear for work Tuesday, I notified his father, and his parents decided to wait a week before calling upon the police for aid."

"The boy has been uninterested in his apprentice work in the composing room of the Press and decided to seek another future instead of following his father's profession."

LOYALISTS BATTER AT OVIEDO RUINS

Bombers Lead Offensive to Cut Life Line of Rebel City With Grado.

NEAR OVIEDO, Spain, Aug. 2.—(UP)—A torrent of steel fell on the capital of the Asturias today as Loyalist forces attacked Rebel troops entrenched in the city's ruins.

Air bombers led the way in an attempt to cut the Nationalists' vital corridor between Oviedo and Grado.

The battle still continued late today, it was announced at government general headquarters in Gijon, and probably will be decisive.

The ruins of Oviedo, long ago evacuated by all but a few male citizens, have been heavily fortified by the occupying Rebels, who have connected deep cellars with communicating tunnels and have constructed concrete strongholds at key points.

The Asturian militia, composed mostly of miners, began a swift and unexpected attack upon the narrow corridor between Oviedo and Grado, seat of the Rebel general headquarters of General Miguel Aranda.

Oviedo depends upon that corridor for all its men, food and munitions.

Nationalist sources proclaimed a victory at Teruel, routing an attack and capturing four towns after bursting through the Loyalists' crack "steel column."

Nationalist cavalry and infantry were reported pursuing some 4,000 government troops through the mountains.

'Milk for Debs?' Boston Society Is All Atwitter

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Boston socialites were divided between indignation and derision tonight over the statement of Ted Saucier, of New York's Waldorf-Astoria, that debutante parties here were "unusual" with gingerbread, apple sauce and milk as chief portions of the menus.

Discussing the approaching debutante season in New York, Saucier was quoted as asserting Boston was "probably the most unusual place for a coming-out party from the standpoint of food."

"In Boston it's still the quaint old custom for the elders to consider debs and their guests as children," Saucier was quoted as saying. "Instead of lavish suppers they get only apple sauce, gingerbread and milk."

Society folk here recalled the coming-out party given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cameron, Burroughs in 1930 for their daughter, Katherine, now Mrs. Forrester Clark. Burroughs got a bill of about $125,000 for that one. The food bill alone was $25,000.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT WILL HEAR APPEAL ON POWER PROJECT

Arguments Are Scheduled
Today on Development at Buzzard's Roost.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 2.—(P)—The fourth United States circuit court of appeals will hear arguments here tomorrow in the Duke Power Company's appeal from a district court decision upholding the legality of the $2,800,000 hydroelectric power project at Buzzard's Roost which Greenwood county, South Carolina, plans to develop with the aid of a loan and grant by the Public Works Administration.

In a previous appeal, the court ruled with the county and the PWA, but the United States supreme court remanded the case for rehearing from the start, asserting that there had been errors of procedure in the lower courts.

After a hearing, District Judge J. Lyles Glenn filed a decision in Greenville, S. C., early this year holding that the project was a proper object of PWA assistance, and denying the permanent injunction sought by power company attorneys.

An appeal to the circuit court was taken promptly, and a temporary restraining order was issued.

"I Don't Want Relief—I'm Asking for Work"

His rugged features displaying a countenance typically American, Jeff Manning, 70-year-old released WPA worker, pleaded for work, not relief, last night at a meeting of unemployed who have been dropped from WPA projects. He wore a look of anxiety as he listened to speakers try to formulate plans that will enable the workers to get jobs. Jeff's anxious about his position. He is classed as employable but then when he asks for work they tell him he is too old. His wife is also without work.

Unemployed Seek Plan for Work In Mass Meeting at Grant Park

Majority of Group Ineligible for Direct Relief Because They Are Listed as 'Employables,' County Official Says; Speakers Urge Organization.

"All unemployed want work at a living wage"—the slogan of the jobless widows and aged men dropped recently from WPA relief work projects—became a living symbol last night at a mass meeting in Grant park of some 200 persons. The meeting was called by Local No. 1 of the WPA women's workers' union, an unaffiliated group, to further organize unemployed WPA workers in order to seek some means of relief—either in private industry or on WPA projects.

Sought Private Work.
They claim they have exhausted the field of private industry, and declare that they cannot find work they are either qualified or able to do.

On the other hand, Jeff Manning, 70 years old, emphatically declared that he did not want relief, he wanted work. His rugged features showed anxiety as he related that first he and then his wife had been dropped from WPA work projects. His wife was among the 500 women dropped from a sewing project when WPA relief quotas were cut July 5.

"I've got to have work of some kind to keep me and my wife from starving," he said. "They told me that I was too old to work when they laid me off."

Slogan Displayed.
The former WPA workers' slogan was painted roughly on a dingy square of cardboard, tacked up on the speaker's platform in the Grant park pavilion.

'FAT MAN' HUNTED IN DEATH OF GIRL

Search Spurred After Child Is Criminally Attacked, Thrown in Creek.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2.—(UP)—A tavern keeper's description of a nervous customer with blood stains on his collar was added today to meager clues through which police sought the man who criminally attacked and killed 11-year-old Joyce Roberts.

Detectives were encouraged by information from a woman tavern keeper that a "fat man" left without drinking his beer Saturday night when she questioned him about the stains on his collar.

The incident occurred four hours after the body of the child was taken from Little Menomonee creek, one mile northeast of Granville, detectives said.

Joyce disappeared from a beach party Saturday after telling her mother about a stranger who was "funny but awful nice."

FINSLER'S COMET NEARS BRILLIANCE

Heavenly Object Has Head Eight Times Larger Than the Earth.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 2.—(P)—Finsler's comet—a heavenly object with a head eight times larger than the earth and a tail more than two million miles long—tonight swept through the northern sky toward its maximum brilliancy.

Camera shutters have clicked rapidly on recent nights at the Harvard Observatory in an effort to determine whence the comet came and whether it might ever return. Scientists explained pictures of the object will be much clearer during its ascendancy than during its declination.

Maximum brilliancy, astronomers predicted, would be attained about August 10. Dr. P. Finsler, professor of mathematics at the University of Zurich, Switzerland, discovered the object on July 5.

ATLANTA SHOULD SEE COMET, JUDGE SAYS

Atlantans should be able to see the comet with the naked eye on any clear night for the next two weeks, according to Superior Court Judge John D. Humphries, whose hobby is astronomy. He has not been able to locate the object yet because of poor local weather conditions, he said.

Boy Pins Hope on Eggs

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(P)—"Herman," the Texas horned toad which 13-year-old Jimmie Soffos bought for 20 cents at the Boy Scout jamboree in Washington, is dead.

"A man told me toads sometimes get stiff and remain that way several days and then come back to life. I'm hoping for the best but I'm afraid Herman is gone for good."

"Herman" laid 18 eggs, however, and Jimmy is hoping many some of them will hatch.

Red Wine Flows From Palm Tree; Sap Gives 'Kick'

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(P)—A titillating tale of trees that yield "luscious red wine" was brought back from the tropical jungles of Lower Mexico today by Llewellyn Williams, curator of botany at the Field Museum.

He spent six months exploring the wild region and returned with the largest collection of wood specimens ever gathered there.

The "whoopee" tree is a species of palm. The natives chop it down, cut a small trough in the trunk, cover it with leaves and let it stand for two days. When they return, the trough is filled with a red wine, formed from fermentation of the sap.

Williams called it "delicious." He also told of trees which "murder" other trees in dense overgrowth where trees and plants, pushing up toward the life-giving sunlight, seem engaged in a "survival of the fittest" battle.

"What I like about Crepetex is the way they lessen the wear and tear on the paternal checkbook!"

MISS A. is the daughter of a well-known Atlanta bank executive. Her father is ungrudging and uncompromising in his gratification of her whims. His generosity did not lessen his pleasure in finding, recently, that her stocking expenditures had considerably decreased. Upon investigation he discovered that she had changed to Crepetex. He writes us:

"She says she wears them because she likes the way they look. I tell her to keep on looking as nice as possible!"

BYRD OPENS FIRE ON REVAMPING BILL AS POWER GRABBER

Claims Congress Could Retain Control Only by Two-Thirds Vote.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, charged today that the administration's bill to reorganize the executive branch of the government would give President Roosevelt a vast amount of power which congress could be sure of recovering only by a two-thirds vote.

The Virginian, who long has argued that governmental reorganization should effect greater economies than the administration has proposed, opened fire on the measure at a senate committee hearing.

Draws Sharp Retort.

Charles E. Merriam, a member of the President's reorganization committee, retorted from the witness stand:

"I don't know whether Senator Byrd seriously intended to introduce the (President's) committee did not intend to maintain the

Police Sound Truck Gets Parking Ticket

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The driver of the Augusta police department's new sound truck spoke with authority today on the pains of traffic law violations.

The driver, on his first day patrolling the streets, warning citizens of traffic law violations, parked incorrectly in front of the city hall.

Mayor Allen ordered a case made, but later relented after the sound truck driver asked for "mercy."

democratic form of our government, but if he did, I resent it."

The Robinson bill would give the President power to regroup, consolidate, create and abolish governmental agencies. It would extend the civil service system and give the President six administrative assistants. It also would create a new cabinet post, the Department of Public Welfare.

HARVARD EX-PRESIDENT IS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Eighty-year-old A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University, was reported tonight in "good" condition at Massachusetts General hospital, suffering a fractured nose, fractured wrist and cuts on the chin, resulting from an automobile accident.

Police reported Dr. Lowell, driving alone, was in a head-on collision last night near Plymouth.

Youth Held as Thief; Blind Father Accuser

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A blind father told police today he wanted to be the "first complainant" against his 18-year-old son, charged with theft.

"He should have been arrested long ago," said the father, Fred Klown, confronted by his son, Richard Klown, in a police station. "I could never do anything with him. He is a thief. I want to be the first complainant against him."

The youth was charged with stealing $19 from Martin Auerbach, a man who befriended him, and several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry and religious insignia from his father and his aunt, Mrs. Mary Kavats.

POLICE OF 2 STATES HUNT BANK BANDITS

Rome Officers Join in Search After Bold Robbery in Alabama.

CEDAR BLUFF, Ala., Aug. 2.—(UP)—Peace officers at Gadsden, Ala., and Rome, Ga., tonight joined Alabama state highway patrolmen in a man hunt for two unmasked bandits who robbed the Bank of Cedar Bluff of $1,000 in cash today.

The bandits, both white men, sped away toward Lookout mountain, seven miles from here, after staging the robbery.

It was the third time the bank had been robbed since 1934. Entering the bank shortly after noon, the men covered W. E. Westbrook, president, with pistols. They warned a few customers in the bank to "keep quiet or we'll drill you."

Westbrook gave state patrolmen an extensive description of the men and said they were driving a dark blue sedan.

A FBI description of the bank robbers was broadcast last night over the Atlanta police radio as reports were circulated the bandits were heading for this city. All officers were ordered to be on look-out for them.

RAILROAD CLERKS VOTE FOR STRIKE

Action Waits Wage Talks; Shopmen Included.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—George M. Harrison, spokesman for 14 non-operating railroad unions, said late today 88 per cent of the unions' 800,000 members had voted to strike unless their current wage controversy with the carriers was settled "satisfactorily."

Those unions, representing such groups of workers as the clerks and shopmen, have asked for a wage increase of 20 cents an hour. Negotiations collapsed several weeks ago. Harrison said at that time they were "no way near" an adjustment.

Otto S. Beyer, a member of the National Mediation Board, has held almost daily conferences with both sides, trying to work out a settlement.

LEAGUE POSTPONES PALESTINE ACTION

Partition Plan Presented to Mandates Body.

GENEVA, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The League of Nations mandates commission made clear today it would take no action on the proposal to split Palestine, until the council meets next month.

The proposal, submitted by a British royal commission to solve Arab-Jewish conflict in its mandate, was presented to the League by William G. A. Crumey-Gore, British colonial secretary. He was cross-examined three hours by the League group.

The commission was expected to consider the administration of Palestine for the last two years, and whether the mandate should be ended, then submit to the council an "account" of advantages and disadvantages of proposed plans.

SLASH SUGGESTED IN BANK SYSTEM

Cut Would Leave Sound Institution—Crowley.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Unprofitable institutions might well be pruned out of the banking system, Chairman Leo T. Crowley, of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, suggested today.

Crowley said at a press conference that "if the number of banks could be reduced by 300 to 400 a year for the next five or seven years, those that were left could make money."

"We would have a sound banking system that could withstand future depressions," he added.

"The FDIC, in co-operation with the state banking supervisors, now is 'working out a program to eliminate a lot of institutions that are unprofitable,'" Crowley continued.

He said a pending survey will show what percentage of bank assets are in low-grade bonds and other "sub-standard" investments.

SUICIDE BY NOOSE ENDS DIVORCE SUIT

Wife of Wealthy Doctor Loved Him 'Too Much.'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The divorce case of wealthy Dr. Lionel Paget Player and his wife, Emily, which has stirred San Francisco society for months, was ended today with the death of Mrs. Player, who the coroner's office reported hanged herself.

Deputy Coroner M. J. Brown made public a note which he said Mrs. Player left for her husband. "I love you too much," the note read.

Dr. Player's suit and his wife's cross-complaint were set for hearing in superior court today. Player charged cruelty; his wife alleged infidelity.

GOLF WIZARD'S FATE PUT UP TO GOVERNOR

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—(AP)—John Montague, whose golf showmanship entranced Hollywood, sat before Governor Frank F. Merriam today and heard attorneys trying to prevent his extradition on an old robbery charge term him "a man reborn."

Officers seeking Merriam's permission to take the recently exposed "mystery man of the fairways" to Essex county, New York, for trial on a charge of participating in a 1930 roadhouse robbery, were confronted with a plea that Montague has rehabilitated himself and that further punishment is not necessary.

The governor said he would take the plea under advisement.

Cocktail Shaker Tempest Floods Revenue Board

Reports the State Revenue Commission would legalize by taxation mixed drinks which hitherto have been barred under Georgia law yesterday brought hundreds of telephone calls to the commission seeking to determine the legality of this or that drink.

Commissioner T. Grady Head, in whose division taxation of beverages is controlled, was out of the city and all inquiries were deferred until his return, probably today.

However, Commissioner Head has made it clear that he will license and tax only those drinks with a beer or a wine base and that he will continue to bar drinks with a gin or a whisky base.

In other words drinks whose alcoholic content has been achieved by fermentation will be approved, provided they are not more than 21 per cent alcohol while drinks achieved by distillation, no matter how small, will be barred.

AIR-SEALED PLANE IS TESTED BY ARMY

Ship Will Banish Dread 'Altitude Addle.'

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 2.—"Good-bye to 'altitude addle!'"

Thus spoke Major Carl Greene, chief of the engineering procurement branch of the air corps, Wright field, as he climbed from the army's "coming thing in aviation."

The "coming thing" is a craft that looks almost exactly like the Lockheed plane in which Amelia Earhart and her navigator were lost in the Pacific.

But really there's a world of difference between the two ships. The army's, in which Major Greene, Captains Alfred H. Johnson and Turner A. Sims, and L. D. Bonham, Lockheed project engineer.

354,267 WORKERS IN UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE FUND

4,452 Employers Qualify
With State Board; Field Supervisors Appointed.

A total of 354,267 Georgia workers, employed by 4,452 firms, corporations and individuals, are qualified to receive unemployment insurance under the laws of the state, L. P. James, director of the unemployment division of the State Department of Labor, announced yesterday.

"Within a few weeks we hope to have more than half a million workers under coverage," James said. "Employers rapidly are meeting with the provisions of the unemployment insurance act and we are experiencing no difficulty except in handling the multitudinous detail in connection with such a large program."

Total Not Determined.
The total insurance each worker will receive in case of unemployment is a matter yet to be determined. James said it would depend largely on the amount paid in by employers when all have come under the provision of the act.

Under the law the insurance is not payable until July 1, 1938, two years from the date of the effect of the law passed by the legislature early this year, but it understood that there is a movement on foot among members of the general assembly to advance the date to January 1 of that year. The legislature anticipated that it would take the labor department almost a year to get the act moving but it develops that all employers likely will have qualified before the next 60 days.

Seven Supervisors Named.
Director James yesterday announced the appointment of seven field supervisors of his division, bringing to 15 the total thus far named and completing the personnel of his department. Those named include:

Charles H. Peacock, of Macon; Clayton E. Coffield, of Decatur; Ira Everett, of Atlanta; Levi A. Harrell, of Hawkinsville; Ben B. Strain, of Dalton; H. B. Hollis, of Madison; and Charles G. Gray, of Fort Valley.

The eight other field supervisors were named about six weeks ago. The unemployment division, though a state agency, is financed

Baby Girl Swimmer Makes Big Splash

Elizabeth Hooks, five months old, enjoying one of her twice-daily swimming lessons given by her father, Bobby Hooks, former football star at the University of Georgia, in the big lake at the Athens Y. M. C. A. camp for boys in the mountains of north Georgia. Hooks is director of the camp.

FIRST LADY LEARNS

Cousin's Mimicry Helps Her Radio Technique.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(P)—Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt credited a takeoff by her Republican cousin, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, today as "the most helpful criticism" she has received of her radio broadcasts.

Beginning a column of questions and answers in the August Democratic Digest, publication of the party women's division, Mrs. Roosevelt wrote that after watching Mrs. Longworth mimic her, she realized she had many things to correct in her radio technique.

by the federal government. It maintains offices in the 101 Building.

Elizabeth Shows Nearly Perfect Form in Water

Elizabeth Hooks, five months old, is setting some sort of record for juvenile precocity. She is taking instruction twice daily and may be expected to blossom out into a new Louisiana Robert or Gertrude Ederle.

Elizabeth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Hooks. Her father was a football star at the University of Georgia a few years ago. He is now coach of the Valdosta High football team, and in the summer director of activities for the Athens Y. M. C. A. Camp for Boys near Tallulah Falls.

The young lady lives at the camp with her parents, and her daily routine includes two periods of sunbathing—she is a complete nudist for this purpose—and two swimming periods in the camp's big lake.

She has never been known even to cry. Laughter is her rule through life, with especial exercise of the risible muscles when splashing in the water.

She is already showing signs of good water form, especially when she strokes and kicks in imitation of her mother or father, both expert swimmers.

'THANK YOU' CALL

Lindbergh Lands at Paris Airfield En Route Home.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—(P)—Interrupting a flight to England, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget airfield here to thank the commander for radio advice given him on recent flights around Europe.

His visit to the field, where he completed his trans-Atlantic flight ten years ago, went unnoticed for half an hour. He was on his way home after a week end with Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom he invented the "artificial heart," at Dr. Carrel's home on St. Gildas island off the coast of Brittany.

From Le Bourget he took off for England. He was alone.

IN DEATH AFTER WRECK

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(P)—W. H. Black, 55-year-old school custodian, died at a hospital today of injuries suffered in an automobile-train crash that took the life of his son.

Elbert Hill Black, 27, the elder man's school teacher son, was killed yesterday when an Illinois Central locomotive struck the Blacks' car on a riverfront crossing.

Chicagoan Is Introduced

To Southern Hospitality

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(P)—Old southern hospitality had a new meaning for Miss Mary A. Crawford, of Chicago, today. Last night she arrived without cash, and couldn't cash a check at the depot. She asked a "red cap" to watch her baggage while she walked downtown to obtain funds.

The negro refused to permit her to walk the streets so late at night and loaned her taxi fare. She cashed the check, returned to catch the train, repaying the "red cap."

HOUSE BODY OKAYS SUGAR AMENDMENT

Committee, However, Refuses To Strike Controversial Item From Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(P)—The house agriculture committee refused today to eliminate from a sugar control bill a provision opposed by the administration but said that if Chairman Jones, Democrat, Texas, proposed an amendment eliminating the controversial provision it would not object.

The provision would restrict refined sugar imports from Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Jones was authorized to seek preferred status on the house calendar for the bill.

Congressional sugar bloc leaders said last week they would recommend that the committee strike the refined restrictions from the measure in order to win rules committee approval of the bill. They said they believed both the house and senate would restore the provision.

LEGION EXPECTING

10,000 TO MAKE TRIP

Third A. E. F. Will Visit French Battlefields.

Inquiries from Georgia Legionnaires in the third A. E. F. indicate a record attendance when a delegation of more than 10,000 Legionnaires sail late in September to be guests of French and Italian governments in visits to World War battlefields, it was announced yesterday at Atlanta Post No. 1 headquarters.

The program for six days of entertainment to be furnished by the French government to the first 10,000 registering begins with French government officials meeting the delegation at point of entry and escorting them by rail to Paris. They will then be transferred to hotels, expenses paid, and later will visit the Paris exposition.

The second day will consist of special bus tours of Paris, with a visit to the American cemetery at Suresnes in the afternoon. Individual visits to the exposition and an afternoon excursion to Versailles will comprise the third day's activity, while the fourth day will be reserved for visits to battlefields.

A special train from Austerlitz station will carry the guests to Tours the fifth day, which then will consist of motor trips to Amboise, Chateaubriant, and Blois, with stopovers at different castles. The sixth day of entertainment furnished by the French government to the visitors will be left free for shopping.

HOSPITAL IS FINED

ON HERO'S CHARGE

Inadequate Treatment Laid to Chicago Infirmary.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(P)—Judge George B. Weiss ruled today the Lakeview hospital failed to give adequate treatment to a wounded civilian hero who killed two robbers in a gun battle and fined the institution $56.

His decision ended a unique trial involving charges based on an obscure Illinois law. The central figure in the case was Lige Debowski. He was in a liquor store last July 17 when two gunmen entered. He snatched a pistol from one of them and fatally wounded both of them before he fell with five bullets in his body.

Debowski was given first aid at Lakeview but later was removed to the county hospital, a public infirmary.

Free Bibles in Schools Legal Under Constitution, Baggott Says

College Park Pastor Believes Lawlessness in State Would Be Reduced by Placing God's Word in Hands of Georgia Pupils; Atheists of America Assailed.

Furnishing of the Bible free to all pupils of public schools would not be a violation of the constitution of Georgia, the Rev. James L. Baggott, pastor of the First Baptist church of College Park, a staunch supporter of the Bible plan, said yesterday.

Dr. Baggott last week took issue with Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hill Baptist church, who opposed the Bible plan, the College Park minister asserting that Dr. Newton is "all wet" on the subject. The Rev. Mr. Baggott is a retired vice president of the Atlanta Baptist Association.

In a further discussion of the Bible issue, Mr. Baggott said: "It would in no wise be unconstitutional for the state to aid religion as a whole in Georgia by giving the children of the state the Bible of their choice. It would cost no more to buy Catholic or Hebrew Bibles than the King James version, which incidentally was produced by the crown in England in 1611 and which has been generally accepted as the state edition of the Bible in England and America from that time to the present for use in courts of law and in presidential inaugurations."

"In giving the Bible of their choice to the school children of all denominations in Georgia, the state could in no sense be chargeable with aiding any individual sect or denomination any more so than in the remission of taxes to the churches, which investment all must agree brings to the state its greatest dividend return."

"Need No Great."
"The lawlessness of our state is found almost entirely in the non-Bible reading division of our citizenship. The parole sentence of juvenile judges usually includes as a condition of probation a stipulated period of Sunday school attendance."

"Many juvenile judges have found from investigation that criminals are almost never Sunday school attendants. Judge Faucett found only three regular Bible school members in 20,000 offenders, in his New York court for juvenile offenders. Our Atlanta juvenile judges report similar findings.

"The churches are reaching only one-third of the boys and girls of Georgia. Two-thirds come from that vast 50 per cent of non-Christian homes of our state. These are non-Christian not in Atheism but in indifference and lesser privileges."

Many Have No Bible.
"Ninety-five per cent or more are either Jewish or Christian in nominal allegiance and religious inclination and will expect Christian or Hebrew burial. But thousands of these poorer families have no Bible. Many more thousands lack proper clothing for church attendance."

"They attend school in overalls—barefoot—but will not go to church so dressed. They and their parents would be blessed by the reading of God's word. By giving these Bibles approximately 450,000 children not in Bible school anywhere would have the privilege of Bible study."

Welfare Is Challenge.
"Is anything more serious than withholding the Bible from these 450,000 Georgia boys and girls who are not in the church Bible schools? Is not their welfare a more serious challenge than the fear of totalitarian state in Georgia?"

"The dictatorship of the devil is far more to be feared than any dictatorship over the churches which may come from offering Bibles (of individual choice) to the youth of our land."

"God forbid that we miss this great opportunity of bringing such a blessing to our land and people. We should honor this great state textbook committee for their vision and courage instead of blocking them. God pity the logic that leads ministers of God to join hands with the Atheists of America."

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 3, 1937.

THE CHALLENGE OF GANDOM

The reported frequency of "strong-arm" incidents in the circles of lottery gandom in Atlanta should act as a warning to the city that "racketeering" with all its crime and accompanying evils, may be driving the entering wedge into local affairs.

So far, it is stated, beatings have been administered only to employees of the "bug" operators who have been suspected of holding out some of the illegal revenue they have collected from the gullible public.

With hired thugs brought into the city to perpetrate these outrages, however, the next step will be that of blackmail, or so-called "protection" for small merchants. That is the way the rackets gained their first foothold in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and others of the biggest cities. Unless a means to stamp out the evil now, in its incipency, is discovered, Atlanta may be threatened with a reign of underworld terrorism that will bring sorrow, suffering and death.

The blame for the existence of the lottery underworld, with its open defiance of law and its implications of greater evils to come, lies squarely at the door of the thousands of otherwise good citizens who patronize the "bug" writers. Every man or woman in Atlanta who has contributed daily to the treasury of the local underworld should realize they are contributing directly to the commission of every crime which springs from this outlaidry. It is difficult to understand why so many are gullible enough to play the numbers. The odds, on a strictly mathematical basis, are 999 to 1 against winning. Add to this tremendous handicap the frequency with which winners fail to collect their winnings, and foolishness is piled upon absurdity.

Yet, enough Atlantans insist upon contributing their spare coins every day to make a "take" so huge that underworld characters resort to mayhem, or even murder, to protect their interests.

Unless the decent people of Atlanta awake to the manner in which they are financing gandom, the day may not be far distant when many of them will be forced, on pain of physical assault, to make contributions of vastly greater amount.

Those who play with the fires of outlaidry cannot expect to escape the conflagration of crime which results.

A FINE SHOWING

The report just issued by Chairman W. L. Miller, of the State Highway Board, reveals that in the first six months of this year approximately $10,000,000 in paving, grading and bridge projects have been awarded to contractors, with a further total of $7,500,000 to be let as soon as the engineering force can complete plans and specifications.

The new highway board, which took office on January 1 last, was faced with an unusual condition in that antagonism between the previous state administration and the United States Bureau of Public Roads had left large amounts of federal aid money unallocated to projects in this state.

The board, therefore, had to allocate an exceptionally large sum before July 1, at which date the federal moneys then available were to be withdrawn from Georgia and returned to the federal treasury.

That the board was able to distribute this money prior to the deadline bespeaks an enthusiastic willingness to co-operate to the fullest extent by every member of the state's department's personnel.

It is further shown, in Chairman Miller's report, that during the six-month period every one of Georgia's 159 counties received some road or bridge work within its borders.

Georgia has advanced a long way in improved highways during the past decade. Yet that progress is small compared to the work yet to be done before the ideal of good roads reaching to every corner of every county of the state is reached.

The present highway board has begun its work well. It is charged with administration of one of the biggest business enterprises in the state. It holds a position peculiarly ripe for the pillaging hand of the political opportunist. Its record, so far, shows that it has successfully guarded against the dry rot of political favoritism in the award of contracts and has stuck strictly to a business administration for the welfare of the entire state.

Sign over a cigar box on the counter of a Chattanooga store: "Police got my slot machine. Please drop your money here."

For wishful solemnity and concentration under heavy odds, nothing beats a couple of drunks playing pool.

Next to a growing girl who demands an all-new outfit for camp, nothing's as uncompromising as a young Asiatic power getting too big for its islands.

From his vacation home in the White mountains, the chief justice of the supreme court sets out each morning on a three-mile-constitutional.

REBUKED WITH DIGNITY

The letter from Governor Rivers to Governor Charles F. Hurley, of Massachusetts, in connection with the latter's refusal to honor Georgia extradition papers for a fugitive negro convict captured in Boston is a model of dignified restraint in a situation which could cause justifiable irritation by the Georgia Governor.

The negro in question made flagrant misstatements regarding his crimes, his sentence and conditions in Georgia prison camps when fighting extradition to this state. Unfortunately, these misstatements were in accord with a widespread misconception of Georgia prisons and Georgia justice in other parts of the country. Massachusetts' Governor seems to have accepted the fables of the screen and novel as fact and has refused to hear both sides before making a prejudiced judgment.

Governor Rivers, in his letter, points to the incontestable fact that a recent wave of gang escapes and unrest among Georgia prisoners is attributable to the designation, through Governor Hurley's unfortunate statement, of Massachusetts as a sanctuary for criminals from this state. While refraining from judgment on a matter which is strictly the business of Massachusetts, Governor Rivers cites that reported conditions in that state's penitentiary are far from humane or desirable. His restraint carries the direct implication that a like attitude by Massachusetts would prohibit criticism of Georgia prison conditions by Governor Hurley.

Georgia, Governor Rivers states, will continue to honor requisitions for Massachusetts escapes captured in this state, if for no other reason than that this state does not wish to become a dumping ground for Massachusetts fugitives.

On the other hand, it might be pointed out, if Massachusetts is anxious to extend her citizenship and hospitality to every desperate criminal who escapes from Georgia imprisonment and can make his way to the purlieus of Boston, it might aid in solving the problem of overcrowded prisons in this state.

VACATION CAMP FOR ADULTS

Camp life for children in the summertime has proven so successful that nowadays it is the rare youngster who doesn't spend some part of his vacation period in such an establishment.

Older members of their families have envied the boys and girls who come home brown and healthy and happy, filled with stories of the good times they have had in some well-equipped mountain retreat.

Perhaps it is a result of this envy, but in any event today the camp idea is spreading for adults. More and more camps are opening their portals for the older people and they are finding wide response.

Camp Highland, located just 12 miles from Atlanta and operated by the Y. W. C. A., is given over for the month of August to adult women. Office workers whose purse cannot stand the strain of an expensive vacation at beach or mountains, mothers tired with a summer of cooking and housework and care of growing children, and other women seeking an inexpensive and health-giving vacation, will find it at Camp Highland. And the cost is so low it is almost cheaper than staying at home.

The opening to adults of camps such as this, with their equipment for quiet, restful ease for those who seek peace, with their swimming, horseback riding, tennis, hiking and other sports for the more active, marks a new phase in modern life. It is a new phase of peculiar significance as a health-giving, intelligent, natural mode for rejuvenation of tired bodies and restoration of city-worn nerves.

STABLE GROWTH

There is a gratifying evidence of stability in the report by State Superintendent of Banking R. E. Gormley, showing an increase of nearly $6,000,000 in total resources of Georgia's state banks since June 30 one year ago.

"The increases," states Superintendent Gormley, "while not sensational, are on a sound basis and indicate a general growth of the institutions."

Steady growth of this type demonstrates the soundness of Georgia's progress upward from depression and into the sun of new prosperity. Spectacular gains always bring with them the handicap of uncertainty. It is the steady growth that is based upon sound business principles and which reflects intelligent expansion of commercial and industrial activity.

While state bank resources have shown this satisfactory gain, deposits likewise reflect the better conditions all over the state. The total deposits show an increase of nearly $3,500,000 for the 12-month period.

The state banks provide, in their condition, an important barometer of business conditions in the smaller communities. And it is upon conditions in those communities that the business welfare of the other larger cities is, in the final analysis, chiefly predicated.

In Illinois a 7-year-old evangelist is haranguing the unregenerate. Unless they mend their ways they will be condemned to eternal spinach.

CAN JIMMY COME BACK?

(From the Spartanburg Herald.)
The popularity of James J. (Jimmy) Walker in New York city is shown by the suggestion that he be a compromise Democratic candidate in the primary election. The former mayor climbed from the ranks of the Democratic party to the highest office the people of New York city could bestow upon him. His bright mind, pleasing personality and considerable executive ability won friends in both major parties. But he played his cards carelessly and an investigation of his administration by the committee headed by Samuel Seabury, an able New York attorney, resulted in his forced resignation and a long stay in Europe. He returned to the United States to be welcomed by a large group of former admirers. Since coming home he has engaged in the practice of his profession and, with modesty formerly not displayed, he has kept out of the newspapers. The suggestion of him for his old place as mayor may bring a considerable following, but it is hardly probable that he will be seriously considered as the nominee of his party. Jimmy has not yet lived down his former indiscretions.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAKE

THAT CIO "SPLIT" WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Splits are the rage in Washington these days. The banana variety has now been supplemented by one which is insidious in certain labor circles, smells decidedly of banana oil. This is the reported CIO leadership "split," and there seems to be some evidence that it isn't quite what it seems.

Long ago, those who were supposed to understand the strategy of the CIO campaign and the difficulties that might arise, predicted that Sidney Hillman, suave, diplomatic, soft-spoken, was to be put out in front if gruff John Lewis proved too tough a proposition for public opinion to accept.

When Mr. Hillman visited the White House last week no statement was issued, but the event provided basis for a report, which was not officially confirmed or denied at that time, that Mr. Hillman would lead the CIO column from now on.

CIO knows that the nearer John Lewis gets to the White House the more the anti-New Dealers cheer.

It is no secret that certain politically sensitive members of the Labor Department likewise are subject to the "too-much-Lewis" affliction.

TIGHT-ROPE FEAT There is a significant story behind at least one senate vote on the wage and hour bill.

It reveals, between the lines, how some of the not-too-vocal conservatives in the Democratic party may remain within the New Deal fold and still manage to bait their hooks for some of their conservative supporters back home.

The vote referred to was Senator Buckley's and it shows a formula which may be adopted for others who would like to run with the hares and hunt with the hounds.

The Ohio senator, whose supporters are by no means confined to those who might be classified among the forgotten men and women, said "no" to the wages and hours proposition. Thereby, it is stated, he won back considerable conservative support that he needs in next year's primaries.

But, his act was taken as a friendly gesture toward the administration. His reward was permission to vote against the pro-labor measure without fear of political retaliation. While the senator can't expect much help from Mr. Farley in his 1938 battle back home, at least there is now to be no sniping from the rear.

Which means, according to those who ought to know, that Mr. Buckley will not have to look for a better 'ole when the New Deal barrage begins to pop over the conservative dugouts.

Others in the party who are as good tight-rope walkers as the Ohioan may earn the same chance to stay on the reservation if they watch their steps.

A THANKLESS TASK Friends of former French Ambassador Georges Bonnet, who left Washington on a hurry call to become finance minister in the Chautemps cabinet, have just returned from Paris and report that the pale-eyed, popular diplomat regrets he ever left the banks of the Potomac.

The financial reforms he has been obliged to decree, to pull the French treasury out of the mire, have got him in Dutch with all his cabinet colleagues. It seems that all the department heads are in favor of cutting down appropriations except when their own budgets are affected.

Despite the rosy statements to the press, intimate friends of the finance minister report him in a gloomy mood.

Cabinet meetings in France these days are stormy affairs. Members threaten to resign if they don't get the money. Bonnet threatens to resign if they do.

"Oh, to be back in Washington," Bonnet sighs. "My working day was over at 5 p. m., and at 6:30 I was on my horse in Rock Creek park. Here in Paris my day begins at 7, when my principal assistants arrive at my home to get their orders for the day. At 9:30 a. m. the office receiving visitors, and, until 9 p. m., I do nothing but listen to people who try to convince me that the only salvation for France is to spend money, though none of them tells me where I am to get it."

To the pessimists, it looks very much like a sensational Bonnet resignation before parliament convenes.

SOME FACTS TO PONDER Unless the presidential candidate in 1940 is convinced that he has the luck of a Jefferson or a Monroe, he will have to be a courageous fellow, indeed.

All the rest of our presidents elected in a year ending in zero have died in office: William Henry Harrison, elected in 1840; Lincoln, 1860; Garfield, 1880; McKinley, 1900, and Harding, 1920.

SILHOUETTES

Now We List Dislikes.
A few days ago this column listed a partial compilation of the things liked.

Now comes old friend Charles Burroughs to accuse us of becoming Pollyanna-ish. Maybe. But not always. There are, probably, days when the Pollyanna motif does color life. But there are other days when thoughts are so iconoclastic as to almost qualify for the Ishmael brand. And, whatever the thoughts, they are apt to be reflected in the column.

So, sometimes expect it to be even sickeningly saccharine. Mr. Burroughs. We'll offset that, possibly the following day, by an outburst of spleen only accountable by an empty bicarbonate tin on the closet shelf.

These Are From Burroughs.
Mr. Burroughs furnishes a list of things he dislikes, to sort of counteract our own list of things liked. It is published herewith.

Any more of you desiring to tell the world your pet obnoxious may send 'em in.

Here's the Burroughs list:
Tom Thumb weddings.
Christmas fireworks.
Al Jolson. (Editor's note: "AND Eddie Cantor.")
Peanut butter.
War.

Precocious kids.
"Symphony of Life."
Auto horn tooters.
Toothpick publicity. (Editor's Note: "AND lipstick publicity.")
Pictures of people eating.

Swamps.
Umbrellas in a crowd. (Editor's Note: "AND umbrellas anywhere.")
Chigoes.
Aggressive salesmen.
Consonance.

Pins in shirts. (Editor's Note: "AND in documents.")
Speeding motorcycles.
Wide-open faces chewing gum.
Modern art.
Dusty winds.
Hillbillies on the radio. (Editor's Note: "AND hill billies.")
Onion zephyrs.
Buttermilk.
Animal cruelty or neglect.
Comic strips.
Fat women in bathing suits.
Preachers with bay windows.

Changing Waitresses.
There is the interesting incident at a popular eating establishment across the way.

The popular waitress, liked by all the boys, quit her job because she was getting married.

But it's all right now. Another attractive little lady has been found to succeed her.

The new waitress explained that she had to take the job because she's got to support herself from now on.

She's getting a divorce.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

AMERICA'S NEWPORT, R. I., Cup Race event in the world receives the ridicule that is flung at the races for the American cup, in which very expensive but utterly useless little sloop boats take themselves out to sea for a few hours to sail 50 miles in a competition for a silver pot which has spent most of its 80 years wrapped up in flannels in a vault and only a few hundred souls have ever seen. For a fact, it is a fantastic business, an almost unbelievable frivolity of the very rich.

Of the thousands who follow the two ships along the gentle swells, only a few have the faintest notion what it is all about, and Saturday afternoon, for example, the sailboats were across the line and well on their way before the people in the tag-along fleet were aware that the race was on, and then only guessed that this was so because the ships timidly broke ranks and started after. But, as a spectacle of wealth and luxury against an immediate background of vulgar toil and practical commerce, the show has its points.

Newport, of course, is the old American stronghold of the idle heirs of ruthless patriots, and the very name of the town recalls the antics of that dear, dear boy, Harry Lehr, the male butterfly who loved nice things, and of a society dinner long ago at which the guest of honor was a bored baboon in evening clothes who treated the 400 as his equals.

Dividend But, as in Palm Beach and every other private refuge of the rich minority, there must be quarters for the lower classes who sell the groceries and mow the lawns and Newport has her grubby little streets along the waterfront, and across the bay from the society side, her coal docks, fish wharves and oil tanks, all very unsightly, to be sure, but a comfort nevertheless. They give proof through the night that the desire for successive generations of Newport heirs are still there and still producing.

The harbor is choked with private boats called yachts, although the word is rather modest, for many of these craft, which are really private liners, and the imagination curls up and quite after a brief attempt to estimate how much they cost to build and what it must take to keep them running.

A big hollow, dingy boat with a sign "ferry" on her, and a few working stiff sitting on benches in her cockpit, comes along, carrying them home at quitting time and runs under the stern of a private ship as big as a freighter.

The ladies and gents are having a glass of something under the awning of the sound of their laughter some of them seem a mite squiffed.

The fresh water barge goes through the fleet, calling on the trade, for water is drink, too, and the gasoline float lies off a little, serving fuel to those who use that kind of fuel. In the morning much too early and too damned bright for tortured souls who didn't tumble in until dawn, the newboy comes along in his boat, bleating his cry of "morning papers." A nuisance, he, but necessary.

Awe at T. O. M. Sopwith, the English owner and skipper of the Endeavour II, has four boats present, two racers and two great ocean passenger vessels, and they take the play away from the race in popular imagination, for they suggest money, money, and sport forgotten in a sense of awe at wealth so vast in one man's possession.

Mr. Sopwith got his building airplanes for the British army in the war, and as one who helped mightily to save the day and make Britain a place fit for heroes to live in, as Lloyd George promised, he seems entitled to a boat as big as any hereditary American millionaire's.

But two big ocean ships! Great boats swing at their chains in the quiet harbor against the shoreline stretch of coal bins, tanks and all, whose names you never even heard, and if you look them up in the register you find that they belong to American millionaires that you never heard of, either.

How much they got and where they got it, and what is their attitude toward a minimum wage of $16 a week, or just about enough to buy polish for the bright work?

But a minimum wage of $16 a week is very remote from the average of Newport harbor, except those reminders in the papers which the boy brings alongside from the other world too early in the morning, piping his cry like a seagull after slops.

Well, for sports the boat race isn't much, but for contrast it has no best.

Angels in Heaven May Rest, But It Ruins Anybody Else

By ROBERT QUILLEN

In the time of our fathers, when belief in hell was universal, church-goers were often reminded how hard it is for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. They must have accepted the teaching with a grain of salt, or their greed overcame discretion, for they kept on trying to get rich.

Moderns may smile at the idea, yet there is abundant evidence that wealth is a moral handicap which few can survive unhurt.

People who profess belief in God often wonder why He permits the wicked to prosper while the righteous remain poor. The answer should be fairly obvious. If man is an immortal soul, briefly housed in an animal body, the first concern of his Creator is not his physical welfare but his spiritual welfare. And the fact that he cannot acquire wealth, except with great difficulty, may be accepted as evidence that it isn't good for him.

The scheme of nature is apparently beneficent. The fact that earth's creatures have survived through the ages is proof enough. Things necessary to their welfare are provided in abundance, and life is sweet to all of them. If men suffer, the fault is not in the natural scheme of things, but in the follies of their race.

If the scheme is arranged for man's good, and yet does not include wealth, it follows logically that wealth is not good for his soul.

To the agnostic and the cynic, that line of argument seems utter nonsense. Yet they can find evidence enough to support it if they will look.

In your own community you can find young people, formerly well-behaved, who went morally to the dogs when they inherited wealth.

And you can find young business men who were industrious, sober and altogether respectable while they were struggling to establish themselves, yet were unable to endure prosperity when it came and promptly went to the devil.

If comfort, ease, luxury and proud security are the greatest good, wealth is a blessing strangely and unkindly denied.

But if man's soul and character and moral welfare are of paramount importance, he is most fortunate and most blessed when his nose is held to the grindstone and he is compelled to struggle without ceasing for the right to survive.

THIS MORNING

"I sometimes think that never blues so red
The rose as where some buried Caesar bled . . ."

From 71 Broadway these days, But Mr. Taylor's place, it is reliably reported, will be taken by young Edward Stettinius Jr., who will stay there for a long time and who is as red and as southern as Mr. Taylor. Listen to Mr. Stettinius: "Industry has done well for the nation, but new requirements are being made. When a whole community can stumble into despair with the stoppage of a single pay roll, it is self-evident that industry has far-reaching social implications which should be matched by an equal sense of social responsibility. It is no exaggeration to say that one of the most important functions of business administration, on the large scale, is the social function. . . ."

Time, as someone somewhere has said, marches on!

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

Will Rogers once said that he cherished the hope that we had about got beyond the era of oratory. Perhaps so, depending upon your definition of oratory. I rather expect he was talking about noise rather than substance. Anyway, there have been three great speeches delivered by Georgians to my certain knowledge within the past few days, and I am grateful that the day of great speeches has not passed away, regardless of the status of oratory.

I refer to the address of Congressman Eugene Cox in the house of representatives on June 30, entitled "A Menace to America," the address of Senator Walter F. George over a nation-wide network on July 19, entitled "Americanism Over Partisanship," and the address of Judge Arthur G. Powell at a meeting of the Ten Club of Atlanta on July 29, entitled "Democracy in America."

I dare not attempt the slightest review of these extensive and comprehensive addresses in this limited space. And it is not what I think about them that counts, but what you think about the issues set forth in these three searching addresses. Happily, any Georgian who will go to the trouble to ask for them may have copies of Congressman Cox's and Senator George's addresses. In the case of Judge Powell's address, I am sorry to say that I know of no way by which you may have a copy of it unless he is able to furnish you a copy. Mr. Pegram, one of the members of the club, is running off a few copies for club members, and Francis Clarke remarked the other night that he expected to reproduce at least sections of the address from time to time on the editorial page of The Constitution, with Judge Powell's consent.

Warrior Poet.
Karl Wilhelm von Humboldt was born in Potsdam, June 22, 1767, the future great Prussian poet, philologist and statesman who united Prussia, Austria, Russia and Britain to crush Napoleon. None of his great interests prevented him from composing a 100-line poem in honor of his wife, every day for 44 years!

Some who are horrified at the "radicalism" of the steel corporation and its lieutenants console themselves with the thought that it is all Myron Taylor's doings and that Mr. Taylor may soon retire.

There are reactionary quarters in the south where statements like these from men of a less sure and respected economic status would be hailed as radicalism of reddest dye. And even though there has not come from these quarters as yet a charge of "Communism" against the steel corporation and its southern subsidiary and officers, we have no doubt one will come sooner or later, for that is the custom whenever moss meets movement in the south today.

OTHER WAYS

TO HELP SCHOOLS

Editor Constitution: I wish to commend most heartily your editorial of today concerning the "Bible in School." In Dr. Newton bringing the attention of the public to the fact of its being against religious freedom, will make the public give it a serious thought.

It seems an unwise and unnecessary expense, and as you have said, there are few children in Georgia today to whom a Bible is not accessible if they wish to read it, and I, too, think it is the home and church responsibility to supply this part of education, and not the taxpayers.

If the state school board wishes to help the schools to that extent, there are many more wonderful ways.

DENIES

"DISPUTE"

Editor Constitution: I have just read in this morning's Constitution in your editorial entitled "A Ministerial Tragedy" in which you deplore what you call the "acrimonious dispute" between the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine and his superiors in the church.

I think you are misinformed about the matter, for, as far as I can learn, at no time has there been a dispute "acrimonious," or otherwise, between the gentleman in question and the church, for no one, from the Archbishop of Canterbury down to the humblest curate of the Church of England, has had the slightest comment to make about the Rev. R. A. Jardine and his activities since he made himself so notorious. They have simply ignored him completely.

It is true our brethren of that Roman persuasion, with no doubt the kindest intentions, sprang to the defense of the archbishop but no one in the Anglican Communion, or our own branch of it here in the United States, the Protestant Episcopal church, has had a word to say on the subject and to call what has been published an "acrimonious dispute" is a gross injustice to the Anglican church and as a lifelong and devoted member of the said church I feel I must protest against it.

CHARGES

EXTRAVAGANCE

Editor Constitution: The state committee on textbooks has decided to recommend eight readers as a minimum for each grade, making a purchase of 56 readers per pupil in a grammar school course. Multiply this by the number of pupils enrolled, times the cost of each book, and the result is a staggering amount. And remember, reading is just one subject.

It is claimed the vocabulary is increased by using a multiplicity of books. You have but to examine the list of books to find that all have, practically, the same vocabulary. Another claim is based on the alleged lack of interest in stories read repeatedly. Everybody should know by this time that the more familiar a story is to a child, the more he enjoys reading it.

Our educators have suddenly become reading conscious. It has been an open secret for a long time that children are not taught to read in the schools, but this is for lack of proper method, not because of a scarcity of textbooks. The guessing game now employed in the teaching of reading broke down long ago, and piling up more books is not going to fill the breach.

It is obvious the state should be given the same consideration as an individual. Picture if you can, a patron buying eight readers for his six-year-old, not to mention spellers, arithmetics, geographies, and what-not for the rest of his children. Any commonwealth is headed for bankruptcy with such a program, and the taxpayer is, after all, the commonwealth.

Bottle-Hatched Quail Thrive on Oatmeal

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Aug. 2.—(P)—L. M. Whitworth is playing daddy to a family of eight quail, hatched with the aid of a hot-water bottle.

He found the eggs in a nest, endangered by a grass fire. Taking them home, Whitworth applied a hot-water bottle. Yesterday eight quail were hatched. The baby birds are being fed on crushed oatmeal.

GEORGE AND BROWN ASK COTTON LOANS

Growers Appeal for 12-Cent Advance To Stem Decline in Prices.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A loan of 12 cents a pound on at least 20 per cent of Georgia's anticipated 1937 million-bale cotton crop to prevent further price recession became a possibility here today when Senator Walter F. George and Representative Paul Brown moved to have the Commodity Credit Corporation advance such loans.

Businessmen and cotton growers from all over the south have been deluging the desks of their congressmen with appeals for a federal loan of 12 cents a pound on 20 per cent of this year's crop, in order to stem the price decline of the staple. To these appeals, the Georgia senator has replied he will bring the suggestions for loans to the personal attention of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as soon as an appointment can be made.

"No new legislation is needed," he said. "The Commodity Credit Corporation already has the power to make loans, the only question now being as to whether such loans would be justified in the face of present market conditions and whether they would be recommended by Secretary Wallace."

"As to the advisability of making such loans, I must admit I am not thoroughly acquainted with the precise situation concerning cotton in the world market. But I do know that the only way to check declining prices of cotton is through loans to cotton farmers. Enough is available through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation if Secretary Wallace will approve them."

In Wallace's hands. "The Commodity Credit Corporation will not make loans upon cotton without a recommendation from the secretary of agriculture, and approval of the President. Therefore, nothing is necessary to enable the credit corporation to make loans upon 20 per cent of the crop, or upon a greater percentage of the crop except their consent. The entire matter now seems to be in the hands of Secretary Wallace."

Representative Brown also is awaiting an appointment with Wallace, having already brought the matter to the office of the credit corporation, including its president, Lynn P. Talley. "We cotton sympathizers are making every effort to stop the decline in the big money crop of the southland," Brown said. "I have talked with federal cotton experts and I believe they can do something to relieve the situation."

Three-Cent Decline. With the price of middling cotton hovering around the 10-12-cents-a-pound index, the present situation means that middling cotton has declined 300 points in the last 80 days, Senator George explained. A decline of 300 points means a decline of 3 cents a pound, which is more than the average cotton grower can stand without refinancing of some sort, he added. A very good crop is in the making in Georgia, but no one can say it will be particularly heavy—probably around a million bales—which was not considered excessive before the government's control policy was instituted some years back.

"The disposition now," Senator George declared, "is to over-estimate the 1937 yield. But even if this year's crop is exceptionally good, the 10-12 cents a pound price existing today, as against 12-12 cents recently, indicates that something is wrong and that federal intervention to halt the decline is imperative."

HERTY ADDRESSES NEWSPAPER GROUP

First District Editors Meet at Sylvania.

SYLVANIA, Ga., Aug. 2.—(P)—Several score members of the First District Press Association and members of their families met here today in summer convention, talked shop and heard several interesting addresses. The Sylvania Telephone, Mrs. W. M. Hobby, editor, and the Sylvania Chamber of Commerce were hosts.

The main speaker was Dr. Charles H. Herty, eminent Savannah chemist. Others who spoke included W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph; W. G. Miss Frankie Trapnell, Metter, president of the association, presided. It was decided to hold the fall session at Hinesville.

Present Penal System Assailed by Bar Head

MACON, Ga., Aug. 2.—(P)—William C. Turpin Jr., president of the Georgia Bar Association, said today his study of crime in Georgia convinced him "that the practical certainty of discharge before sentence is served is probably the greatest weakness of our system."

Turpin's statement was made in comment on a recently published WPA survey of criminal court procedure in the state. He said the survey "is a real contribution to the study of crime, and that 'an intelligent use of it by our law enforcing officers and those interested in the reduction of crime in this state would be of inestimable value to all of us.'"

Picturesque 'Bull' of Wall Street Is Expelled From All Exchanges

'Mike' Meehan Found Guilty of 'Rigging Market' With Bellanca Aircraft in 1935; Physicians Foretold Adverse Ruling by Month.

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Physicians, it was learned today, anticipated the Securities and Exchange Commission's expulsion of Michael J. Meehan from the exchanges by more than a month.

Meehan, one of Wall Street's best-known "bulls," was expelled by the commission from the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade.

As head of the brokerage firm of M. J. Meehan & Company, he was convicted by the commission of charges of "rigging the market" in June, 1935, with the use of stock of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation.

Meehan, who played the leading role in what was perhaps the most fabulous of the get-rich-quick romances of the 'twenties, was released in late June from a private sanatorium where he had spent almost a year recuperating from a nervous breakdown. Attending physicians have prescribed a quiet life for him and have issued strict orders against his returning to Wall Street. Coupon-clipping is the limit they have set for his financial activities.

Although the Street had been prepared for the SEC's adverse ruling, nevertheless, the decision itself came as a shock, for there never has been a big market operator in modern times who had more friends than this round-faced, 46-year-old Irishman who is called "Mike" by practically everybody in Wall Street, from runners to bank presidents.

Once Had Eight Seats. Unlike any other broker operating on such a large scale (at one time his firm had $2,400,000 in invested funds), Meehan had nine branch offices, was the first to open brokerage offices on trans-Atlantic liners, Meehan, when he was "on to anything," talked about it openly and jubilantly to everyone he knew. That took in about half the town all of those making, sporting and financial circles. That, those close to him here say, more than anything else was responsible for his nervous breakdown, for not all of those whom he made rich were willing to take the bad with the good. When tips went sour, they grumbled and Meehan took their losses much more to heart than he did his own.

Meehan got into the Street from behind the counter of a theater-ticket brokerage, Charles Morgan, broker, urged him to go in for a Wall Street career and finally the ticket agent took a job with him. He branched out as a curb broker when that exchange was still in the open air.

By 1920, he had his own seat on the exchange. He became a specialist in Radio Corporation of America stock. When the big traders seized on Radio as "the" buy of the decade, they had to take Meehan with it. By the time they got through pushing the stock around, they had pushed the young Irishman into a fortune estimated at from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Crash Didn't Break Him. In 1928 and 1929, Radio jumped more than 500 points, reaching a split-share value before the crash of $570. The crash did not come near breaking Meehan. In 1930, the name of Michael J. Meehan appeared as the financier of the Good Humor Corporation. Today she and Mrs. John J. Raskob own financial control of this corporation and its assets of over $1,200,000. The Street takes Mrs. Meehan to mean Michael J.

Meehan, the commission said, in the Bellanca case employed various manipulative devices to force up the price, including the matching of buying and selling orders. During this period, the commission said there was talk, "stimulated by the respondent, circling about as to newer and better days for Bellanca," and the conclusion is "irresistible" that Meehan's purpose was to create a misleading appearance of active trading in the stock and a misleading appearance with respect to the market in the stock.

Dr. Oden's letter said: "We have an institution for approximately 5,000 patients. We have now, housed within the walls of these buildings, 7,243 patients. The institution has become saturated and there is nothing for us to do except refuse admission to all those making application, except when vacancies occur."

"I hope to be able to receive into the institution those young, acute, violently insane individuals who hold out most hope for permanent benefit, and whom it will be necessary to hospitalize for a short period only."

"We must especially refuse admission to seniles, paralytics, bed-ridden cases, mental defectives and alcohol and drug addicts. The administration is very cooperative with us in our desire to help out in this serious situation, and is making preparations to give us a building fund as soon as possible. . . . We have reached the very end of the row."

LIGHT VOTE IS SEEN IN VIRGINIA TODAY

Democrats Will Pick Gubernatorial Candidate, 45 Delegates.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 2.—(P) Virginia Democratic party leaders estimated tonight slightly more than 100,000 voters would be sufficient to nominate candidates for Governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general in tomorrow's primary.

Predicting a total vote of about 210,000, M. A. Hutchinson, secretary of the state Democratic committee, said the absence of local contests in many parts of the state would contribute to the comparatively light vote.

In addition to naming the three major state nominees from a list of six candidates, Democrats will nominate 45 for the house of delegates from a field of 105 candidates and also a candidate for congress from the third district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Andrew Jackson Montague.

James H. Price, of Richmond, present lieutenant governor, and State Senator Vivian L. Page, of Norfolk, are seeking the gubernatorial nomination.

State Senators Saxon W. Holt, of Newport News, and Robert W. Daniel, of Prince George county, who is serving his first term as a Virginia legislator, have waged one of the campaign's most spirited contests, for the lieutenant governorship.

Mr. Johnston said another of the indictments named Oscar Perry and Arthur Mack, both negroes, in connection with the fatal stabbing of Charles R. Helton, night watchman, in an encounter at the fair grounds Saturday. Both negroes were shot and slightly wounded by Helton.

The other two indictments involved slayings of negroes by negroes.

Finances of City Generally Fine, Report Reveals

Demand Is Bk as Tobacco Markets Resume Sales in South Georgia.

Atlanta as a whole is well off financially, City Comptroller B. Graham West pointed out in his annual report published yesterday.

The city government has assets totaling more than four times its debts, and the city and its residents are worth more than $400,000,000. Assets of the city are worth $61,461,072 while its total indebtedness, as of December 31, 1936, amounted to $14,699,036. Total valuations on taxable property in Atlanta amount to $349,874,773.

West's report, compiled for the year 1936 by the comptroller, Assistant Comptroller Lawrence A. James and members of West's staff, reveals that the city revenue last year was $8,426,391, but that it spent $8,583,928, increasing the floating deficit nearly $160,000. The deficit is $1,629,000.

Atlanta has a bonded debt of $13,059,726, which is $11,245,000 less than the maximum which it can legally incur.

LEAF PRICES STICK TO OPENING LEVELS

Demand Is Bk as Tobacco Markets Resume Sales in South Georgia.

By the Associated Press. Brisk trading kept bright leaf tobacco prices in line with an official opening week average, in 40 of the state's 58 warehouses, of 25.37 cents a pound Monday as the second week of auctions began in Georgia markets.

The 25.37 cents average price was announced by the State Bureau of Markets. The bureau said reports from each market city will be released when the remaining 18 warehouses are heard from. The 40 warehouses sold 9,410,118 pounds of the leaf for $2,387,510.37 during Thursday and Friday auctions.

The average price for the first week's sales (four days) last year was 25.11 cents a pound. During the four-day opening week in 1936, warehouses sold 25,318,196 pounds of tobacco for $6,357,896.43.

KEEPING COOL NO PROBLEM TO TROPICS EXPLORER!

Mr. Anthony Fiala, noted jungle explorer, says: "When I hit the jungle trail tea is a No. 1 necessity. I vitalize with tea to beat fatigue, nervous tension, sweating heat. Tea is the jungle belt's most popular drink. Tea gets you cool and keeps you cool far longer than other so-called cooling drinks."

The difference between tea and other so-called cooling drinks is this: Tea does more than merely quench thirst. Tea actually LOWERS body temperature. Its cooling effect is more LASTING.

Besides its cooling, vitalizing effects, iced tea tastes delicious. To get real flavor and VITALITY, select a good brand of Orange Pekoe that comes from India, Ceylon, and Java-Sumatra.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO REVOKE PERMITS FOR BEER AND WINE

Surprise 'Revolt' Sends Four Requests Back to Police Committee

City council balked yesterday on revocation of four beer and wine permits recommended by the police committee.

In a surprise move, four recommendations for revocation of beer and wine permits were referred to the committee, drawing caustic comment from Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman. Observers said the action was practically a revolt.

Places Investigated. "All these permits had been recommended to be revoked because Police Chief M. A. Hornsby or some officer of the police department had investigated the places and found that they had been violating the laws," Bridges asserted. "I don't know what we are going to do if council will not support the recommendations of the investigators."

The "balk" followed controversy within the police committee last Friday when Councilman Cecil W. Hester fought revocation of two permits for beer and wine in Teeny Weeny stands at Forest avenue and Courtland, and Ponce de Leon and Boulevard. He asked yesterday to refer the recommended revocation of the Teeny Weeny permits at Courtland and Forest, and Councilman Charlie Chosewood asked to have the unfavorable paper against Ralph Burnside at 359 Fair street returned to the committee. Other permits were at 102 Harris street, returned for Alderman Robert Carpenter, and at 681 Marietta, referred for Councilman Frank Wilson. Permits at 973 Fair street were revoked.

Veto Upheld. Efforts to override Mayor Hartsfield's veto of the tax ordinance amendment to require only semi-annual payment of beer and wine licenses in advance were unsuccessful. Alderman Frank Reynolds led the attack on the veto.

Alderman I. Gloer Hailey did not introduce a resolution asking the city to recognize the Municipal Employees' Union as the sole bargaining agent for city workers. It had been reported he would yesterday. Hailey said union men "did not bring me the resolution."

Council approved a proposal by city engineers and members of the sewer committee providing for Fulton county participation in costs of the metropolitan sewer system.

Sewer Payment. It would require the county to pay $25,000 in 1938 and $50,000 a year thereafter, with Fulton having the privilege of tapping all sewers outside the city limits, and the city maintaining and operating all sewers and plants. Alderman Reynolds, chairman of the sewer committee, said it will be submitted to county officials immediately.

The proposal will require the county to return its promise to donate $350,000 worth of work and materials and to complete, in addition, Peachtree creek sewer No. 1. "The county lacks $220,000 of donating $350,000," Reynolds said. Mayor Hartsfield was authorized to sign a contract with the county

Reno Marriages Set New Record

RENO, Aug. 2.—(P)—All records for marriage licenses issued in this divorce "capital" in one month were broken in July when 958 couples were married here.

The former record was 892, set in June. The July total brought the number of licenses issued this year to 4,326, compared to 3,881 at the time a year ago.

and when reassured Fulton will carry out its bargain.

Name Sticks. Hartsfield's effort to have his name taken off copies of charges failed yesterday. The paper, approved twice by the police committee and once by the ordinance committee, was tabled.

A request for a $25,000 appropriation with which to remodel the front entrance of the city auditorium was referred to the finance committee. Councilman John White introduced it. If WPA aid cannot be secured, the city will have to remodel the front itself, it was said. A five-year contract with Fulton Brothers Electric Company for lease of sound equipment in the auditorium was approved by council.

Hartsfield's appointment of Alderman Roy Callaway as chairman of the sanitary committee was confirmed. The mayor named Councilman William T. Knight on this committee, and appointed Councilmen Frank Wilson and J. Allen Couch on the hospital committee to serve with Councilman Frank Beck, chairman.

Parallel Parking. Parallel parking on the south side of Marietta between Broad and Forsyth streets was voted over opposition from Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, who asked is "this merely to benefit trackless trolleys?" Parallel parking on Piedmont avenue from Fourteenth street to the railroad bridge was ordered also.

Request for a committee to confer with county, state and federal officials concerning construction of the North avenue underpass behind Sears, Roebuck and Company, introduced by Hailey, was passed.

Union Pay Asked. Resolutions to give union scale pay to workers in the sanitary, motor transport and blacksmiths' shop, introduced by Callaway and Knight, were referred to the finance committee. Alderman Hartsfield installation of union pay for these employees would be approximately a 10 per cent raise.

Other actions taken yesterday included: Referring to police committee Councilman Howard Haile's proposal to buy $5,000 worth of new motorcycles; deferred consideration of ordinances regulating sale and discharge of fireworks; approved a resolution to place a traffic light at Ponce de Leon and Lakeview avenue, vigorously opposed by Couch; referred a paper by Alderman Robert Carpenter to condemn sidewalks on Broad street from Marietta to Mitchell and to authorize repaving with concrete; authorized demolishing the old Southern Dental College building at Coca-Cola place and Butler street and referred an inquiry from Oglethorpe University as to rental possibilities of the building.

Truck Purchase Asked. Approved purchase of an $800 fire department truck; approved sending Raymond W. Torres, engineer, to the Harvard University traffic school; referred to the finance committee the request of 16 plainclothes policemen for detectives' pay; approved asking for a new direct air mail route from Atlanta to Cincinnati; named Paul Chipman to negotiate prices of land adjoining Candler field for expansion; adopted Hester's paper requesting federal aid in reconstruction of the Boulevard underpass; approved employment of a plumbing inspector at $187 per month; referred Hailey's proposed ordinance to prevent train engines pushing strings of cars ahead over crossing where no watchmen or gates are provided; received a report of the Lakewood Heights fire station committee; and referred to the public works committee Councilman E. A. Minor's request for bus service in East Atlanta.

The aldermanic board occurred in all council actions. The electric lights committee yesterday deferred action on City Electrician Dewey Johnson's proposal for the city to clean and maintain the white way system.

FORMER ATLANTAN PASSES IN FLORIDA

Mrs. Helena S. Powell Will Be Buried Here. Mrs. Helena S. Powell, 74-year-old former Atlantan, died yesterday morning at the residence of her son, Lawrence A. Powell, funeral director of Fort Myers, Fla. Born in Atlanta, Mrs. Powell lived here until her removal to Fort Myers in 1923. She was active in church work here, being a member of the Sacred Heart church.

Funeral services will be conducted in Atlanta tomorrow or Thursday in the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Surviving are three other sons, George T. Powell, of Macon; F. A. Powell Jr., of Washington, D. C.; and Marion Powell, of Fort Myers.

BOY, 8, LOSES LIFE IN BIG CITY SEWER

saw him. Her lunge to catch him was futile.

P. J. McCormack Jr., employed by the Southern Printing Company, near by, was attracted to the scene by the outcries. He said: "We heard the children screaming and my brother, A. W. McCormack, and E. W. Cassidy and I ran to the windows just in time to see the boy's head disappear into the water. We ran and tried to pull him out. He was beyond reach."

Answer First Call. Patrolmen Marion R. Dodd and A. F. Etheridge answered the first call and summoned additional police aid, fire department first aid squads and doctors. Then they organized a search for the body.

It was found hanging on the tree limb by Officers L. D. Cady and Virgil Whittier, who brought it to the emergency life saving station which had been set up near the federal prison where the sewer empties into the creek.

Despite an hour and a half's work and the doses of adrenalin given by Dr. William A. Collins Jr., of the prison, the body was taken to Grady hospital where the boy was pronounced dead.

J. D. Britt, a neighbor of the Rogers, said he searched the storm sewer for an emergency opening on an alley between Rawson and Alice streets and also between Alice street and the emergency opening. He said: "I was getting my chickens and ducks together in the yard. Sometimes it floods waist deep around there and I heard the girls screaming that Herschell had fallen into the sewer. I ran down to the manhole in the alley to try and stop him. When I failed I telephoned the firemen to look out for him where it emptied. "I went into the sewer and searched all the way up to Rawson street but he had been swept away. I didn't give the boy a chance. He was probably battered to death."

Dangerous When Filled. Britt, a brickmason, said he frequently retrieved his ducks from the storm sewer into which they had been swept by stationing himself in the sewer from the manhole either in the alley, halfway between Rawson and Alice street, or at Alice street. Britt said: "I have been living here 14 years and know all about these sewers. People who live near here fail to realize how this water backs up and how dangerous it can get."

Herschell was regarded by neighbors as one of the brightest lads in the neighborhood. His was a family popularity.

VETERAN, 98, CLAIMS BRIDE; 'AINT PETTISH'

TYLER, Texas, Aug. 2.—(P)—A 98-year-old Confederate veteran who proved in a whirlwind courtship that "I ain't a bit pettish about being around women" claimed his bride here today.

She is the former Mrs. Repta Smith, 57, of Dallas. She wrote to the nonagenarian, William Dickson Lenair, after publication in Dallas last week of a photograph and an interview in which he expressed a wish to marry.

HIGH OF 96 DEGREES IS EXPECTED TODAY

Hottest Day of Year Forecast for Atlanta.

Delayed by yesterday's downpour, the hottest weather of the year will reach Atlanta today, the weatherman said, when the mercury is expected to soar to 96 degrees in spite of partly cloudy skies forecast late yesterday.

The hottest day would have been yesterday if the mercury climb had not been interrupted by a 45-minute shower which struck downtown Atlanta about noon, and registered 1.48 inches at the meteorological station on the new Postoffice building, the weatherman said.

The hottest weather previously recorded at the city station was 94 degrees on July 14, 15 and 16, and two days during June.

Temperature extremes yesterday were 88 and 70 degrees. The low temperature this morning was expected to be 74 degrees.

GOVERNOR AGAINST TAX INCREASES

feels no additional taxes are needed at present to pay the appropriation bill approved by the assembly at its session early this year. He said: "I have every reason to believe that the state's income from its present sources will be enough to meet the appropriation bill. We had $2,000,000 on hand when the fiscal year began July 1 and with what is coming in, plus the increased ad valorem tax, we ought to have ample funds to meet our expenses."

Appropriations Cut. This statement was made despite the fact that appropriations temporarily have been pared down 20 per cent. The Governor also said: "The order fixing the appropriation at 80 per cent does not mean that we do not hope to pay all. On the contrary I believe that the appropriations will be paid in full."

It is known that the increase of from three to five mills in the ad valorem taxes was due to the chief executive's desire to obtain funds for social security.

In discussing the tax situation, Governor Rivers declared that the whole program of the state administration is one of shifting tax burdens rather than adding any new taxes. He declared:

"The state has taken over all the schools for seven months out of the year. Next year you ought to see a reduction in local school taxes. The local school districts and the counties won't need as much school money as they formerly did."

"Plenty of Roads." "There are a number of inequities in this act which must be remedied."

The first meeting of the Jackson committee is expected to be in about two weeks.

VANDALS WRECK HOME, STEAL LIGHT FIXTURES
For the second time within a week, vandals have entered a new residence on Beverly road, cut screens, smashed light fixtures and taken a chandelier valued at $150, police were told yesterday. The latest entry was made at 150 Beverly road. Last week a residence under construction at 98 Beverly road was entered and paint smeared on the walls.

'FRAUD' CHARGED IN HOUSING BILL

were many slum areas, filthy houses and insanitary living standards.

Still, apparently dissatisfied with either Copeland's or Wagner's explanation of why rural areas needed, or could get, federal housing under the pending bill, Senator George charged that there was "fraud" in the bill.

"Have I not a right to conclude that the senator (George) is not in sympathy with the method we are providing in this proposed legislation?" asked Wagner.

"No," replied the Georgian. "I am not in sympathy with any fraud in the bill, and when the senator talks about rural areas I know it is a fraud because the bill cannot be administered in rural areas."

"Does the senator suggest," queried Wagner, "that I am indulging in fraud?"

Here, Senator Neely, of West Virginia, jumped to his feet to make a point of order against Senator George's intimations against the New Yorker.

"The rules of the senate," Neely shouted, "prohibit any senator from making remarks that reflect upon the character or patriotism of another senator, and to accuse a senator of having 'a fraud' in this bill, is such a reflection."

"I mean no personal reflection when I say the bill is a fraud," promptly answered George.

not take his seat until confirmed by the senate."

In the midst of the furor over the White House announcement, the judiciary committee unanimously approved a resolution for a broad inquiry into all phases of the judicial issue raised by the President's reorganization proposal.

It endorsed a resolution by Senators Burke and Hare, Democrat, New Mexico, a Roosevelt supporter, calling for appointment of a group of judiciary committee members to study the entire question and report "from time to time."

With an appropriation of $10,000, the committee would be directed to inquire into "all matters relating to the reorganization of the courts of the United States, the appointment of additional judges for any such courts, and the reform of judicial procedure."

Hatch Opposes Study. Hatch said he believes the study either would "get something worth while, or demonstrate we can't agree on anything."

He expressed the opinion a constitutional amendment for compulsory retirement of judges at 75 years of age is needed.

The proposal for a study of the judiciary issue came on the eve of senate consideration of the lower court bill which has been substituted for the President's measure. Senate leaders said they expect to take up that measure tomorrow after disposing of the Wagner housing bill.

Woman Dies After Fast 'For Glory of the Lord'

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—(P)—Miss Ada Zinkan, 63, died of starvation after a 53-day fast "for the glory of the Lord," a county autopsy surgeon decided today.

Mrs. Anna Ashcroft, with whom she lived, said Miss Zinkan had a "call from the Lord" and fasted, but had begun to drink fruit juices a few days before her death Saturday.

She attended one of Almee Semple McPherson's four-square gospel churches in Gardena, but church officials said she was not a member.

Lorraine Chinchar, 10, died of a fractured skull. Marilyn Murphy, 9, suffered a fractured back and broken legs. The girls, attempting to climb from the roof of Marilyn's apartment building to the next building, stepped on a wire netting covered with roofing material. They broke through it.

SHIP'S FIRE HOSE INVOLVED IN QUIZ

Water Came Out With Alarm, Chief Engineer Asserts Before Board.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2.—(P)—Charles Simmons, chief engineer of the burned bay steamer City of Baltimore, testified today before a federal board investigating the disaster, that, contrary to previous testimony, both the fire hose pumps and the sprinkler system aboard the ship were operating.

FIRE PROBE HALTED TO PUT OUT BLAZE

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2.—(P)—Fire broke out today in the hearing room where a federal board of inquiry was taking testimony on the blaze that destroyed the bay steamer City of Baltimore.

Smelling acrid smoke, Captain Paul Tyler, of the local marine inspection board, stopped the hearing until a spectator put out a fire that had flared up in a cuspidor.

Simmons told the board he smelled wood smoke when he came on deck for dinner. At the engine room door, he said, a fireman ran toward him and told him the vessel was ablaze.

"I called down to the engine room to start the fire pumps," he said. "I was told that the pump was already running. I opened several valves of the sprinkler system and the water came out."

Barnes told the board that the fire which gutted the ship and cost three lives started in bags of sugar stored on the freight deck. The watchman's testimony opened the second day of the investigation into Thursday night's holocaust at the entrance of Baltimore harbor. One passenger and two crew members died and approximately 90 other persons were saved. The ship, Norfolk-bound from Baltimore, burned to the water's edge.

ALUMINUM'S FIGHT ON ANTI-TRUST CASE GOES TO HIGH COURT

Decision of Three-Judge Tribunal in Philadelphia Contested by Company.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Aluminum Company of America carried to the supreme court today its fight against anti-trust proceedings filed by the government in New York.

It asked the tribunal to pass on a decision by three circuit judges at Philadelphia that the Department of Justice could proceed with the suit in the New York federal court.

The three-judge court, constituting a special expediting tribunal, decided that proceedings there against the aluminum company and 62 other defendants were not similar to action taken in the Pittsburgh federal district court in 1912 against the aluminum company alone.

Judge Robert M. Gibson, of the Pittsburgh court, previously had held the two cases were similar and that any further action should be filed in Pittsburgh rather than in New York.

Defendants in the New York suit are accused of monopoly and conspiracy to restrain trade in aluminum and related commodities.

GARRISON AT BENNING PARADES FOR CADETS

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Infantry school garrison turned out full strength here today for members of the first class of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

It was one of the biggest reviews of the year here with more than 8,000 troops taking part.

The cadets are here for a two-week training period.

Included in the parade which passed before Brigadier General Asa L. Singleton, commandant, and the cadets were the 29th infantry, the 24th infantry, 83rd field artillery, 66th infantry (medium tanks, chemical warfare and machine gun companies), and a cavalry unit from Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

The cadets arrived here Saturday from Savannah, where they landed from an army transport.

'CLEAN-LOOKING' MAN HUNTED AS ATTACKER

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Brooklyn police disclosed a surprise break today in the two-day investigation of the garroting and attacking of little eight-year-old Paula Magnana by broadcasting a "wanted for murder" description of a young "clean-looking" man.

Captain George Gallagher, of the Brooklyn homicide squad, said the description was provided by a woman whose name was not disclosed.

This break came after hopes of solving the mystery were dashed when parents of the slain child said a sun suit, given by a known man to a Manhattan woman, was not Paula's missing costume.

Theft Suspect Held After Fracas In Which Cafe Owner Kills Negro

Piece of Barbecue Is Cause of Fight Ending in Shooting.

A former wrestler early yesterday used his ring tactics to rescue his 21-year-old wife from a negro theft suspect who was beating her and later was forced to shoot and kill another to prove he meant business.

Mrs. Clyde Nichols, wife of Charles B. Nichols, the former professional wrestler, was in the front of their luncheon room at 448 Fraser street, S. E., when Millard Sherry, 20-year-old negro, of 505 Fraser street, entered and attempted, she said, to leave without paying for a piece of barbecue.

Grapples With Negro. The young woman grappled with the negro when he tried to leave without answering her question about paying for food.

A 12-year-old negro delivery boy, Leon Gilbert, gave Mrs. Nichols a blackjack when it looked the negro would escape her. She struck Sherry on the head with it, knocking him through the glass door. Angered, the negro pulled her from the luncheon room into the street with him. Leon then gave Mrs. Nichols a gun, which she fired wildly twice.

The shots brought her husband.

Blackjack Used. "About that time another negro appeared out of the night from goodness knows where," Mrs. Nichols said. "When we had been struggling the gun had gone off three times and my arms were all burned. Charlie got there about the time the second negro appeared. Charlie hit Sherry over the head about 15 times with the blackjack. When we saw a fight was coming on with the second negro, Charlie killed him."

"We dragged him (police identified the negro as Henry Wood, 20) back to the block to the store and he lay stretched out on the floor until the police came. The body was sent to the undertakers and then Charlie and I went to Grady hospital for treatment. When they brought me home I was so nervous that I thought I could never have a moment of peace or rest again."

Killed Instantly. Detectives were told Wood threw a brick at Nichols and was about to throw another when the former wrestler fired once, the bullet striking Wood in the mouth, killing him instantly.

Nichols was booked on a technical charge of murder and will be tried in recorder's court at 8:30 o'clock Thursday, Detectives D. L. Taylor and Morgan Johnson said. Sherry was arrested on suspicion for investigation.

Accounts vary as to the necessity of shooting the second negro, Detective Taylor said.

FOUR ESCAPE INJURY IN TRAIN-AUTO CRASH

Four persons escaped serious injury last night when the car in which they were riding was struck by an Atlanta-bound freight train at the Atlanta-Marietta highway crossing near Marietta.

The car was knocked 100 feet down the right-of-way but was not badly damaged.

Miss Evelyn Morris, 31, of a Whitehall terrace address, the most severely injured, was thrown from the car. She sustained arm injuries.

Other occupants treated at Grady hospital and dismissed were Mrs. Velma Spinyard, 31, of 345 Cooper street; Jesse Howell, 40, of Carey Park, driver, and Amos Hickman, 30, of 344 Whitehall street.

Foster Mother For Six Puppies Is Badly Needed

Six little newborn English bull puppies were whining for mama last night, but mama had gone wherever all good dogs eventually go.

She died under ether as a veterinarian performed a Caesarean operation to deliver her pups. There were nine in the litter, six lived.

Appeals were being made last night to find a foster mother for the tiny pups. In the meantime, their mistress, Mrs. H. F. Cogill, 60 Twenty-sixth street, N. W., fed them cow's milk and raw eggs with a baby bottle and nipple.

They seemingly were thriving, but real dog milk is wanted.

The mother, Betty, was four years old, lacking only three points for her championship papers. It was her second litter delivered by a Caesarean. The father is a pure-blooded championship English Bull.

"You see these are aristocrat pups," their mistress said as she took time out from feeding her pups and partook of a little nourishment herself. That was at midnight, she had been working furiously since the pups arrived about 9 o'clock.

"If anyone has a foster mother to loan, please send her over to feed these little things," she pleaded.

Five of the pups are female, one male. Three are brindle and three are brindle and white.

MAN HELD AS DRIVER OF FATAL HIT-RUN CAR

NEW TAZEWELL, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Ivy Earls, 24, New Tazewell, was killed tonight when she was struck by an automobile while walking on highway No. 33 near her home. The automobile did not stop.

An hour later an automobile of the same description was halted in Knoxville and a LaFollette man was arrested.

Sergeant Bob Robinson, of the state highway patrol at New Tazewell, said the man would be charged with manslaughter.

"Noteworthy improvements shown by the new designs are Philco's inclined control panel with automatic tuning and RCA's sensational Electric Tuning," pointed out Mr. Almand. "Zenith and Crosley have likewise stepped forward with many important improvements, with all makes showing unusually good sales. For perfect summer reception any of these makes are unexcelled," he concluded.—(adv.)

DEWEY SMASHES POULTRY RACKET

Union Trio Admit Embezzling Thousands.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey's case against Arthur (Tootsie) Herbert was brought to an abrupt and successful conclusion today with "the poultry industry czar's" switch to a plea of guilty of embezzlement.

Two fellow defendants, David Diamondstone, president of the Chicken Driver, Chauffeurs and Helpers' Union, No. 107, and Harry Frankel, secretary-treasurer, joined Herbert in admitting that they had collectively embezzled thousands of dollars from the union.

Dewey said: "For more than 10 years, 'Tootsie' has been using his union to dominate a great industry, raise the cost of poultry in this city and cause untold misery to merchants and workers alike."

Crackers, Guests Enjoy Fine Feast

The annual Douglasville barbecue for the Crackers was a great success, as usual, yesterday. W. J. Dozier, whose reputation as a barbecue cook has spread far and wide, did not suffer any loss of prestige. In fact, his reputation was enhanced as the 200 people gathered around the festive

There May Be Barbecue Left in Douglasville

But It Isn't Any Fault of Crackers; Annual Party Is Again Big Success.

By JACK TROY.

Some people still hold up medieval torture as one of the very black passages in history.

But all that is sissy stuff compared with Mr. W. J. Dozier's methods at Douglasville, where the annual Cracker barbecue was observed yesterday.

Mr. Dozier annually allows the Cracker players and visitors to gather on the lawn of Roy Entekin's spring place and engage in various sports, such as rifle shooting, horseshoe pitching (barnyard golf) and approaching (irregular hole-in-one golf).

All the while Mr. Dozier is busy at the pits, where the lamb, pork and chickens are going through the final stages of the cooking. The wood smoke and the cooking meat fill the air with odors so tantalizing that some of the Crackers have been known to take off through the woods after an unsuspecting bovine or porker, whose safety was assured only by virtue of an ability to run faster.

PREPARE FEAST. Mr. Dozier leaves the visitors to their own devices while he leisurely goes about the business of preparing the feast, even going so far as inviting people to come over and watch the process.

Medieval torture? It was truly sissy stuff. Little Buster Chatham was one of the chief pre-barbecue victims. He had arrived early. And, unable to bear the grief alone, he took it upon himself to guide all new arrivals to the pits so that he would have plenty of company to share his misery.

The torture ends for all time once the table is spread. The festive board literally groans under the weight of the combined cuts and sauces, which are truly something that past descriptions, in course, impossible afterwards to prove that such is the case, because there never are any samples left.

200 WERE THERE. There were almost 200 people present for the annual barbecue. Notables from Atlanta included President Earl Mann, of the Crackers; Al Belle Isle, Mike Benton and Capus and Oby Brewer.

The Cracker players included Hooks, Mauldin, Rose, Chatham, Luby, Moon, Manager Moore, Mailho, Leonard, Miller, Galvin, Richards, Williams, Durham, Trexler and Harris.

And one other whom it might not be amiss to mention—Johnny Hill, of Douglasville. The annual barbecue is, naturally, a sort of party for the home-town boys who made good in such a big way with the neighboring Atlanta team.

It was strictly a stag party and so Aunt Minnie McGuirk, Mrs. Entekin and Mrs. Smith, among the many other fine ladies of Douglasville, were forced to dine alone. But they enjoyed it—because the men folks saw to it that they didn't miss out on the barbecue.

The ladies were looking forward to Johnny Hill night, which is to-night at the ball park. Aunt Minnie revealed that her young grandson, Mack James, of Decatur, is going to present Johnny with something special. It's his "home run bat." Young Mack knows Johnny won't miss when he uses this war club.

BELCHER SECOND AS BRITONS WIN

Tech Star Loses in 440 Before 70,000 London Fans.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Although Ben Johnson, Columbia's negro sprint ace, won two events and his teammates accounted for two more, the United States' touring track and field team dropped a 41-to-32 decision to Great Britain before a bank holiday crowd of 70,000 at White City stadium today.

Johnson won the 100 and 220-yard dashes, taking the first in 9.8 and the longer dash in 21.7. America's Olympic champions, Ken Carpenter and Cornelius Johnson, won the discus and high jump, respectively. Carpenter won with a toss of 162 feet, 8 inches while Johnson cleared the bar at 6 feet 5 inches.

Charlie Belcher, Georgia Tech middle distance star, gave the Americans a second place in the 440-yard run. He was nosed out by W. Roberts, of Great Britain's winning team. The time was 48.3.

The failure of Archie San Romani in the mile and George Varoff in the pole vault cost the United States a chance to win. San Romani, who arrived on the Queen Mary this morning and almost crashed when an airplane landed at Heston airport, didn't know whether he would run until a few minutes before the race.

From the standpoint of point gathering, the young Kansas bridegroom might as well not started for he finished fifth as England's Stanley Wooderson won in 4:15.8.

Varoff, badly off form, finished well down in the pole vault after falling to get above 13 feet. He holds the recognized world record at 14 feet 6 1/2 inches.

BRAWNER PLAYS CLOSER IN FINAL

Dr. C. C. Clower and Dr. J. N. Brawner Jr. will play this week for the Nat Kaiser Memorial trophy on the Ansley Park course. Clower defeated B. D. Daniel, 1 up, and Dr. Brawner eliminated Dr. Ben Jones, 2-1, in the semi-finals last week.

In the other flights, T. M. Smith beat M. B. Hanna and Dr. W. E. Campbell Jr. beat W. T. Hanson, 3-2, in the second flight. H. G. Reeves beat H. W. Beck, 2 up, 36 holes, and T. M. Hage eliminated Jack Fraser, 1 up in the third flight, while D. H. Neifert beat J. M. Ward, 4-3, and E. E. Thames beat W. N. Kennon by default in the fourth flight.

Bone, Ozmer Play for Title

C. W. Bone and Charlie Ozmer entered the finals of the annual Bobby Jones Municipal Club championship tournament but will postpone their match until one day next week.

Fred Owens beat J. H. Aver, 6-5, to win the championship consolation flight. J. Robinson beat A. E. Burton 2-1, in the second flight and E. Bruce beat W. Herrington, 3-2, in the third flight.

It wasn't so many weeks ago Man Mountain Dean, who ran a set of whiskers and 360 pounds into a comfortable income for life, sat down in the office and talked.

"I'm going to retire," he said. "You know how it is. Too many of the boys are dying. The old ticker gets hurt in all this wrestling. I know the crowd thinks most of it's phoney. But, after all, you can't exactly frame a fall to a concrete floor or into chairs that break up into splinters."

"What got me was Jim Browning dying. He was my friend. I'm going to quit. Retire. If you keep on in this, you get hurt. And I'm not going to get hurt. I'm going to quit before that."

Yesterday they unloaded Man Mountain Dean off a train in Atlanta and started him off toward Norcross, where he has a home and a farm.

His broken leg was in a cast. Dean, who was fat everywhere except inside his skull, is the Falstaff of the wrestling world. He has larded the rings in a hundred towns or more. And he has lined his pockets well.

The boys write hilarious pieces about sparrows flying from his beard. Or about his sleeping on his stomach so he could use his beard as a mattress—but he kept getting the money.

He could be clown or Hamlet. He preferred the former. The Hollywood stars used to pack in to see him because, they said, they admired great acting.

His theme song was—"I'm going to quit before I get hurt." He didn't. And when the leg heals he'll go back again, no matter how often he says no. I think I'll have to go up to Norcross just to hear him promise never to wrestle again.

If he does stop it will be because Mrs. Dean says to stop. It was she who thought of the whiskers and the other trappings which helped make the Dean show a great one. His story is one to match that of Primo Carnera, the giant who tried fighting.

JOHNNY HILL NIGHT.

Tonight happens to be Johnny Hill night at the Atlanta baseball park. His home-town people, and those of adjacent towns, will be present tonight to cheer him as the Crackers open a very vital home stay.

Johnny Hill is hitting a mere .359. That's great hitting in any league or language. He is rather sure to get a major league trial on the basis of his showing this year and last.

Had it not been for the Douglasville boy the Crackers would most certainly be down in the slums of the league instead of clinging to the last respectable position in most of the victories won of late.

There is to be a little ceremony tonight. They will give Johnny Hill a present. It will not be a floral horseshoe. But something that goes well with the hunting season.

SEE THE FJORDS GO BY.

Just the other night I looked across at another table and there sat Dave Wilcox, the one-time Georgia Tech football player.

He has become, in the space of three years, a blooming cosmopolite.

He has been to Scandinavia and watched the fjords go by. He has seen the copper roofs and spires of Copenhagen. He has eaten smor-brod in Helsingfors; onion soup in Paris; beef and potatoes in London, and traveled the globe learning to be an architect. He has learned to knot his tie with a little careless touch that cannot be learned in a day.

He was a good, rough, rugged guard who could stay in there where the boys sweat and gasp and charge and oull.

He came of a family of guards. There was Brother John, who graduated a year later. I asked about John. And John is working in a gold mine in the west, being an engineer of mines.

Alan Wilcox is in school now, playing guard in the football seasons. It seems only yesterday the advance guard of the Texas

DIMAG IS AHEAD OF RUTH'S MARK

Joe Hit 31st Homer in 89th Game; Babe's Came in 93d.

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Jolting Joe DiMaggio, who insists he hasn't any particular ambition to break Babe Ruth's all-time home run record, is challenging the Bambino's mark whether he wants to or not.

Although it's improbable that any batter can duplicate Ruth's runaway through the last month of the 1937 season, when he clubbed 17 out of the lot, the deadpan dynamite of the New York Yankees may have a chance to come within shooting distance of the Babe's 60-homer mark for a season.

At any rate, he's in front of the Ruthian record right now, for the same period of play. The Babe hit his 30th homer in the 82nd game of the '37 campaign, and then went without one for nearly two weeks, finally breaking the ice with his 31st in the 93rd contest.

DiMaggio, despite a late start in which he missed the season's first 10 games, hit his 31st Sunday, in what was officially the Yankees' 89th game or the 91st if two ties are included.

GREAT AVERAGE. In the 85 games in which he has seen action, DiMaggio has clouted one round-tripper on an average of every 25 innings. In Ruth's big year, his average, up to the time he belted No. 31, was every 27 innings.

However, even should DiMaggio keep up his present pace, he would still fall short of the big Ruth year. He would have to quicken that pace by 100 per cent during the last month of the season to hang onto the blistering belting the Babe did in his September slugging 10 years back.

But regardless of his chances of eclipsing Ruth's record, and they are slim at best—DiMaggio has been doing a lot of pretty fair country clouting so far in his sophomore year. Except for three inhome runs, his longest lapse in games between homers was four contests. Twice he hit at least one each day, three days in succession. On four occasions, he has hit two homers in one game, and once he whacked three in a single contest.

JOB HARDER. His job, particularly at home in Yankee stadium, is harder than was Ruth's. The Babe, a left-handed hitter, found the shorter right-field bleachers in the stadium an easy target. DiMagg, a rightie, has the more distant left and center field stands to shoot at, both at home and on tour through the circuit.

Jarring Joe has clouted at least one four-bagger in every park in the league, with the single exception of Boston. He has walloped 11 in the stadium, six in Sportsman's park, St. Louis; five in Chicago, four in Detroit, three in Washington, and one each in Philadelphia and Cleveland.

His particular pitching cousin up to now has been young Bonetti, of the Browns, who has served four home-run balls to him. Ted Lyons, of the White Sox, and Jack Knott, of the Browns, are next in line with three "mistakes" each charged against them, so far as DiMaggio is concerned. Probably the blow that did the most damage, however, was the smash DiMaggio drove into the left field stands at Cleveland with the bases loaded, to personally whip Bob Feller.

Crackers and Vols Open Here Tonight

Fans To Honor Johnny Hill; Drastic Changes Loom in Southern Race.

By JACK TROY.

There is a definite possibility that Southern league baseball stock may figure in a terrific turnover before the week of play ends.

With Memphis, Nashville, Atlanta and New Orleans figuring in the diamond doings.

After all these months of consistent play, Memphis is now barely hanging in there as the second-place club. Nashville is only half a game back.

The Crackers, opening a third-place battle with the Vols at 8:30 tonight, are two and one-half games back of Lance Richbourg's club.

Larry Gilbert's unpredictable New Orleans Pelicans are in fifth place, only a game back of the Crackers.

BIG FIGHT ON. And so the fight for second, third and fourth places in the Southern league is just beginning. Little Rock has a wide lead of nine and one-half games over second-place Memphis and should breeze into the 1937 pennant.

The battle rests, then, between four teams for places in the first division. Birmingham also is a possibility to enter the battle before the curtain is run down.

The Crackers will play 28 of their remaining 43 games at home, which should give the Atlanta nine a bit of an edge.

Nashville is expected to pitch either Bill Crouch or Ray Starr against Emil Leonard in the series opener tonight. It will be Johnny Hill night at the Cracker park.

SPECIAL GUESTS. Douglasville fans will give Hill a shotgun and a case of shells to-

Boland, Gillespie and Manley Win as City Net Meet Opens

CARD CUT SHORT BY RAIN; ONLY 11 MATCHES PLAYED

Weldon Selesky Wins Hard-Fought Struggle From Roger DeLeon.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
An abbreviated first-day's play, Dr. Kels Bolland, seeded fifth, and Malcolm Manley, No. 6, advanced to the second round of the annual city tennis tournament at the North Avenue Billmore courts yesterday.

Rain during the earlier part of the afternoon caused the postponement of all but 11 of the scheduled matches.

Boland, Gillespie and Manley, the only seeded players to play yesterday, advanced with easy victories over their foes. Bolland eliminated Charles Rice, Tech High star, 6-1, 6-1.

Gillespie, University of Miami ace, an elder brother of Billy, who has created something of a sensation in recent northern tournaments, beat Jack Morris, 6-0, 6-2.

Manley, who lost last year's finals to Jimmy Halverstad, won from Bud Morris, 6-2, 6-1.

FAVORITES IDLE.
Seeded players who didn't play yesterday are Malon Courts, No. 1; Jimmy Halverstad, No. 3; Bill Brown, No. 4; Preston Chambers, No. 7, and Red Enloe, No. 8.

In the continuation of the first-round play today, Enloe will play French at 6 o'clock. Nineteen other matches are scheduled, the first starting at 10 this morning.

Pairings for the women's singles and the men's doubles have not been announced but the first-round elimination will begin tomorrow.

In one of the most hard-fought matches of yesterday's play, Weldon Selesky, Boys' High net captain, rallied to beat Roger DeLeon in three sets. DeLeon took the first set, 6-4, dropped the second, 1-6, and was leading in the third 3-0, when Selesky rallied to take six straight games to take the set, and match, 6-3.

ANOTHER THRILLER.
Another of the matches which gave the fans plenty of excitement was the one between Gene McConnell and Paul Gleason, No. 1 man on the Decatur High squad. McDonald, who was favored to win, lost in three sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

'A Rubdown for a Meal,' Said the Colored Boy

And Four Years Later, Jimmy Finley Saw That Boy, Tiger Flowers, Win the —

By THAD HOLT.
"Mistah, I sho' likes de way you'll uses yo fists. Man, man, you'll is some fighter. Yas suli!" And then the frail colored boy shuttled up alongside the boxer, who was just finishing his workout, and said: "White folks, kin I rub you'll down? Won't cost nothing but de price ob a meal."

That little scene took place in an Atlanta gymnasium in 1922. The boxer was Jimmy Finley, now associated with Frank Speer in promoting fights here. The colored boy—you'd never guess—was Tiger Flowers.

Four years later, Finley sat at the ringside in Madison Square Garden and saw that colored boy lift the crown from the dancing head of Harry Greb.

"Tiger Flowers was a fighter for you," said Finley as he reviewed his own spectacular ring career that carried him into battle against six world's champions and never saw him lose by a knockout.

"Tiger was not rugged. He couldn't take a lot of punishment. Few boxers can. But Flowers didn't have to take punishment. He had speed to burn. And man, he could travel 15 or 20 rounds at any pace and never seem to tire."

An interesting and straightforward fellow is Jimmy Finley.

MET AVERA HERE.
He fought his first main event in Atlanta in 1922 against Larry Avera and lost the decision, later squaring matters in Florida.

Finley was a good friend of Stribling and helped prepare W. L. for his title fight at Columbus, Ga., with Mike McTigue, the fight that for a few moments made Stribling light-heavyweight champion. Then the decision was reversed.

Jimmy Finley came close to winning the world's welterweight championship in 1928, his last year in the ring. He had to retire just as he had reached his peak, because of bad eyes.

"Yeah," smiled the matchmaker, "I almost stole the championship away from Joe Dundee, the original Joe."

FOUGHT AT TAMPA.
The fight was at Tampa and was to be an overweight match. The weighing in was to occur at 3 o'clock the day of the fight and I was to be over the weight limit of 148. I never weighed over 144 in my life.

"At five minutes of three I weighed in, but I secreted pieces of lead under each arm and managed to come in at 149. That suited Dundee and his manager."

Then at 3 o'clock, I discarded the pieces of lead, called two reputable newspapermen, one of whom was Marvin McCarthy, now a Chicago sports writer; a doctor, a notary public, and weighed in again—this time correctly. I scaled only 143 pounds. That meant if I won the fight and had reliable witnesses to prove I weighed only 143 at the stipulated weighing in time, I would be champion.

"Well, I ripped Dundee to pieces. I gave him one of the worst beatings of his life. Thousands of Cubans stormed around the ring at the final gong yelling 'Feelene! Feelene!'

"Jim Downing, Tampa promoter, was refereeing, and for reasons of his own meant to see to it that Dundee didn't lose his title. Finally, 15 minutes later and with scores of policemen standing his guard, he announced the bout was a draw. You can imagine how that took with the Cubans. For some reason, Mr. Downing left town. And in a hurry."

Jim Finley is optimistic over making Atlanta a boxing center. He thinks Ben Brown is a wonderful prospect and plans to develop other young boxers here. Paired with Speer, Finley should make a real showing. He has the connections and the intelligence to make a success of his match-making.

RANGER ROMPS AGAIN; SOPWITH SEEKING DELAY

Challenger Is Outsailed on All Three Ten-Mile Legs.

ing that there would be no race tomorrow. Apparently the challenger asked the interruption in the four-out-of-seven-race series. Endeavour crossed the line at 3:40:05 p. m. (Atlanta time) official timing.

The race committee said Sopwith asked for a one-day postponement, to which he is entitled under the cup racing rules, and which was granted although the reason was not stated.

But it was assumed that, after two successive and decisive drubbings, the Briton wishes to make changes in the blue-bulleted slop for which he held such high hopes of regaining the international yachting trophy for the first time since the schooner America took the cup in 1851.

CHALLENGER CHEERED.

Endeavour, despite the fact she finished 19 minutes 32 seconds behind the Defender, was cheered almost as lustily as her conqueror, whose victory brought the standing to 43 races won by the United States against five won by the British challengers. Each of the 15 previous matches has been won by the American entry, and Vanderbilt currently is engaged in his third defense of the "old mug."

Endeavour was outsailed on all three 10-mile legs but turned in her best performance on the final one, as Ranger could increase her lead by only 1 minute 14 seconds. The race, however, was decided in the opening 10-mile beat and, once Vanderbilt had wrested a temporary advantage from Sopwith, Ranger's victory never was in doubt.

The challenger's chief weakness appeared to be her skipper's disposition to sail too close to the wind in an effort to point as high as possible.

Endeavour's brief early lead, which amounted to two or three boat lengths was lost before the first hour had gone by.

THE SPORTLIGHT by GRANTLAND RICE

A LESSON IN GOLF.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A few days ago we played two rounds of golf with a young fellow by the name of Robert T. Jones. In the course of this double march over the famous wind-swept National links, we stepped into a golf lesson that not only the average golfers—the 94 per cent—but also most of the pros could profit by.

The main part of this lesson had little to do with grip or stance, pivoting or foot action. The main part was the manner in which Jones stepped up to his ball on every shot, placed the head of his club behind it, and then started his smooth, flowing swing without a waggle or any other preliminary motion.

Here was the answer to the golfer's curse—tension—and to the game's curse—waste of time.

In this respect many of the leading or well-known pros are as bad as any duffer. They wiggle and waggle—walk back and forth—and finally turn the game into a cross between a nightmare and a St. Vitus dance.

In one of the recent big tournaments I saw one of the best known pros in the country, one of the leading winners, leave a wide-open gap of 40 minutes or six open holes between himself and the pair ahead. That is the type of golf that should be stopped.

Motion and Tension.

In following Bob Jones around the course, several members of the gallery complained that he played with so much speed they couldn't see what he did.

Bob has always been full of tension. He has had the temperament more fitted to football, baseball or tennis than to golf. Knowing that motion is the enemy of tension, the best cure for this poison, he has forced himself to eliminate "the fixed post" position over the ball where tension gathers force and control.

Once he has taken his stance you see the clubhead start back as smoothly as a light breeze—no hurry—no rush—no sudden jerk. Against this you see most golfers get set over the ball—you see their feet planted—you see their legs and body begin to stiffen—and then they stand wriggling and waggling until suddenly the clubhead pops back like something shot from a navy gun.

By the time the average golfer starts his backswing, he hasn't a chance to do any swinging. He is tied up in so many knots that four sailors couldn't get him out.

His legs are locked—his body is locked—his wrists are locked. All that can happen later is a semi-convulsion.

Socially Prominent Atlantans Depart Today for Lake Rabun

By Sally Forth.

A CONGENIAL party of friends will start this morning for Lake Rabun, that picturesque body of water that nestles among the hills of north Georgia and which is swept by cooling breezes. Their destination is Chantilly, the summer home of Mrs. Malcolm Fleming, which annually houses the same group of socially prominent women. This is the third attempt of the Atlantans to make the pilgrimage this summer, and they leave at an early hour today for Lake Rabun. Lots of time will be spent lounging in the deck chairs on the lawn and riding in the boats that skim over the blue waters of the lake.

The group includes Mesdames Carroll Latimer Sr., Cam Dorsey, Alex Smith Jr., Kendrick Goldsmith, Phil Alston, Mabel Hood Ridley, Hugh Dorsey, John Denton and Malcolm Fleming. They have been for 20 years members of the same sewing club that meets weekly at the home of some member, and they spend one week out of every summer at Chantilly.

WHEN Bettye Braungart waved a gay farewell to her youthful swains as she left her family for a vacation in St. Petersburg, they ceased to be her responsibility—those boys could take care of themselves. Not so Mickypopolous, the battle-scarred and bob-tailed feline cherished and nourished by the entire Braungart family but who rated Bettye's special affection and care.

Executive ability or possibly instinct guided her to the near-by home of a cat-loving neighbor, where satisfactory negotiations were concluded. Among the understandings, Mickypopolous was guaranteed not to so much as look at a bird and would eat anything offered in the way of food. A final caution was added that his name not be shortened to Mickey, which the neighbor, being Irish, had practically done. So Mickypopolous was eased down onto the polished floor, accepted guest—a very whole of a cat.

That night he was fostered and fed. He failed to answer the "first call" for breakfast next morning, as well as the "last call," yet when the shades of evening were falling, he appeared for his dinner. Taking no chances, the gadabout was placed in the basement for safekeeping, which proved unsafe after all, as he disappeared through a large hole made in the screen of an open window at the expense of some hair and possibly hide.

On the third evening, he again returned for dinner, after which he departed, not again to return. The neighbor checked her misgivings and heaved a sigh of relief as she passed the Braungart home two weeks later, to see Mickypopolous, sleekly expectant, in front of his rightful home awaiting the call for breakfast. Bettye Braungart was home again.

GLIMPSED here and there—Bess L'Eglise and Christine Thiesen gaily riding bicycles around Peachtree circle—Rosemary Manry, in a white, green and blue striped evening dress, looking quite attractive at the recent Saturday evening dance at the Piedmont Driving Club—Carroll Hopkins with her beautiful sunburn, acquired in the swimming pool of her lovely new home, set off by a brown figured linen evening dress trimmed in green—news of how charming Doris Becker looked at a recent tea-dance at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club, Virginia Beach, in a beach costume with coat of pink salt sack cloth and brown salt sack slacks.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Write plain name held in confidence. Write plain name held in confidence. Write plain name held in confidence.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I have always heard that every girl's greatest ambition is to be married, have a home and a family. I have had three proposals and after each I have been more determined than ever to remain as I am and be an old maid. This is the truth from the bottom of my heart. Still I believe I am in love with a fine young man who has every idea that he will marry me when he has established himself and is able to provide for a family. I adore to be with him and I think of him almost constantly. Now here's my problem. If I tell him how I feel about marriage, I know I will lose him and in that case I am afraid I will be sold-out and later discover that I really did want to marry him. Should I hold on to him and take a chance on a change of mind or tell him the facts and see him fade out?

UNA.

Answer: Una, I think you are kidding yourself and getting a big kick out of it—at the moment. You are giving your ego a good airing, trying to prove to yourself and to the world that you are different from the run-of-the-mine female and that you are distinguished by this difference. But are you? Blessings brighten as they take their flight. Boy friends are more valuable when they are few and far between. Proposals make prettier music in a girl's ear as she gets along in years and envisions the long future with no hand to hold, no heart for hers to beat against, no strong arm to fend for her, no warm wall to shield her from the cold, cold world. And don't kid yourself: It is a cold world for the average lone woman.

Not that any marriage is a sin, cure, per se; not that married life is invariably happy; not that some old maids aren't more contented than some wives—but that marriage is the normal, natural course for the woman to follow and if she's lucky enough to love and be loved, all things being equal, she had better sign up for perpetual care, pay the price and take the consequences.

The price is high even when the husband has good health, good moral character, good disposition and comfortable income. It is higher proportionately as he runs down the scale of these gifts of God. Paradoxically she pays for the privilege of being a wife by giving up her independence and going into life-long bondage. She pays for the privilege of mortgaging her life to another life so she no longer thinks, feels, acts as a perfectly independent person who has only herself to consider. When she falls in love she is usually perfectly willing to pay, yes, anxious.

Only in this investment can she have all the things dear to the feminine heart. At that she may not get them all, depending on a great many contingencies beyond her control. She may have a husband, a home, a family of children, the full and complete life. No career, even if it brings her fame and fortune, is quite so satisfactory. For when all the tale is told LOVE is a woman's whole existence.

NEW MOTORCYCLES URGED FOR POLICE

Haire Advocates Machines To Chase 'Bug' Men.

Purchase of $5,000 worth of new motorcycles for the police department to eliminate reckless speeding of police cars chasing criminals was advocated yesterday in council by Councilman Howard Haire.

"By putting men on motorcycles to chase bug operators and suspected misdeed offenders, we will not endanger the lives of citizens but will be able to catch criminals just the same," said Haire. His request for $5,000 was referred to the finance committee.

DEBTS OF $306,670 LISTED IN PETITION

Liabilities of about $900 for every dollar listed as assets were cited in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed yesterday in federal district court by Humphrey R. Wagar Jr., contractor, of 1280 Peachtree street, N. E.

Total liabilities listed were $306,670.10, while total assets were $341. Greater part of the liabilities, the petition stated, consisted of unsecured claims. Included in the list of unsecured creditors were:

Ashcraft-Wilkinson Company, or Mel R. Wilkinson, $200,000; Southern States Life Insurance Company of Atlanta, $50,000; Edward R. and Leonard Haas, $13,788; May Bros., Inc., $12,000; Margaret W. Wagar, $8,500; Guaranty Mortgage Company, $7,400, and Mrs. Emily C. Pryor, $4,000.

Linen Suit Has Lace Blouse

Midsummer ensemble of white linen with lace blouse.

By LISBETH.

White is registering importantly in Paris as well as on this side of the water for these warm summer days.

White was seen many times on the recent Grand Prix day—a high spot in the Paris season. A great many well-dressed women were present who divided the spectator's attention with the horses who were picked to win.

Patou designed this tailored suit of white linen that is worn with a white lace blouse. The pattern of the lace is one of the many interesting lace designs that are to be seen this season, and is the main interest of the blouse, which otherwise is very simple, with long sleeves and turnover, pointed collar.

The jacket of the suit is also smartly tailored, and a Panama hat is worn with the costume.

New Evening Hat.

A clever little evening hat is worn in Paris is worth noting. It is a mob cap, almost as small as a cat or skull cap, and made of tulle with a frill of the same all around it and a chin strap. It is most effective.

Short jackets of lace are worn a great deal, and one costume with a three-quarter coat was very striking. The dress was severely tailored black lace with the coat in blue patterned lace on black fabric.

Lace dresses that you see on the avenues range all the way from all black tailored costumes to fairly bright blues, violets, white and reds. This type of dress is usually quite simple and in no way looks out of place on the street. It is a good packer, not giving to wrinkling, and so often is chosen by tourists. This type of lace dress also serves for more formal occasions than the ordinary daytime dress, and so does double duty on occasion.

Lace is to be recommended for town frocks for hot weather. The style best suited to this kind of wear is light or pastel in color or navy. A turquoise lace dress, for instance, with gored skirt, short, full sleeves, and V neckline edged in brown, and with a brown tulle sash and brown daisies at the neck, is practical and pretty as well.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

A GADABOUT'S NOTEBOOK.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—When Sonja Henie returns to Hollywood in the fall there will be no Mr. Tyrone Power to take her places. For the past month the latter gentleman has been growing peevish with the romantic bonds imposed on him by the studio publicity department. He considers himself too important an actor to be the escort of the skating champ. "I'd sooner be with someone like Loreta Young or Janet Gaynor," he is said to have told an intimate at Twentieth Century-Fox—because they are more famous than the little Henie. What a pity that Power has succumbed to the prevailing disease of believing his publicity.

The current rumor that Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell are feuding is dispelled by the proof that both players couldn't be more friendly on and off the set. Could the story have been started by production heads at M-G-M, who had to give some excuse for the delay of "Love, Live and Learn," in which Bob and Rosalind are co-stars? Salka Viertel, close friend of Gertrude Garbo, has refused $250,000 to pen a biography of the Swedish reclusa. Robert Riskin and Ginger Rogers are a new romantic combination. Riskin was formerly the chief boy-friend of Carole Lombard. How these boys get around!

Errol Flynn did not go to Spain as originally planned because estranged wife Lili Damita was planning to rejoin him directly he arrived in Europe—a little awkward in view of the fact that Errol now wears blondes, particularly golden haired Joan Bennett.

There is no love lost between Kay Francis and Director Archie Mayo. The latter makes no secret of his feeling for the actress he last directed in "Give Me Your Heart." Robert Taylor and Roy Del Ruth each received one dozen roses from Robert Benchley as an apology for "blowing up" in his lines during a Sunday work-out for "Broadway Melody of 1938."

With typical Hollywood contrarianism, Miriam Hopkins has deserted her $42,000 mansion (once occupied by John Gilbert), and spends her days and nights roaming around the coast in her trailer. Gary Cooper tells me that the only way he can gain weight is by exercising. So now you know what not to do. Darryl Zanuck practices polo every day on a hundred-foot raised contraption on the back lot of his studio. A hydraulic jack jiggles the netted platform so that the ball always returns to the mechanical horse. Charles Butterworth tells the story of Joe Grausmuck who went to the judge and said, "I want to change my name." "I don't blame you," replied the sympathetic legalite. "What do you want to call yourself?" "Isaac Grausmuck," stated Joe.

There has been no confirmation to date of the Toby Wing-Wesley Ruggles elopement, and their friends insist they are still merely good friends. At last it has been discovered why Katharine Hepburn dislikes visitors to her sets. Their presence gives her nervous indigestion. Katie's newest admirer is new-comer Joan Fontaine who is loud in praise for the star's kindness to her co-workers. A certain well known emoteur of the silent days is threatening to commit suicide unless his recently acquired youthful wife pays him a little attention.

When Norma Shearer moved from her Santa Monica beach home to the Beverly Wilshire hotel, and then to Lake Arrowhead, there were unusual stories that she was quitting the home in which she lived with the late Irving Thalberg. But the simple truth is Miss Shearer is adding a new playroom to the beach home and dislikes the noise of building. Incidentally, she has just signed a long-term contract with M-G-M, her first with the company for several years. The reason—to protect her large holdings in the company.

According to a visiting playwright—"Hollywood is the only place in the world to go from barbarism to decadence, without once touching civilization."

MORE DRAMATIC.

Should I jiggle the furniture around?

"I'd appreciate your saying about my living room," writes a reader who'd like to do over her room in a more dramatic style. "It appears old-fashioned and stereotyped, although the furniture is fairly new. I want to repaint the walls to be a fitting background for my things. The rug is predominantly beige and rose and the turquoise covers mostly in a soft green brocade with one chair in dark red. The draperies are dark red and beige damask, the lamp shades are beige and the mantel is antique white. I had thought of painting the walls pale rose-beige and the ceiling a dark red but I am wondering if that would make the effect too top-heavy. Another idea was to paint one wall (but which?) dark red and the rest rose-beige. What do you think? Don't hesitate to change any plan of mine that doesn't just seem right to you."

"I enclose a diagram of the room and the present furniture arrangement. Do you think it

DOWNTOWN 'CLEANUP' IS URGED IN COUNCIL

Co-operation of Atlanta merchants and property owners in cleaning up downtown sections of the city was asked yesterday by Alderman Robert Carpenter.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

REDUCING STANDSTILL ONLY TEMPORARY.

It takes patience and persistence to bring weight down to normal, for the average slimming program goes by fits and starts. Just as you begin losing according to schedule, the scales will behave as if you were trying to gain them, without your doing a thing different, you will suddenly begin to lose again.

A balky period usually occurs after a six-week weight loss. If you started with the summer reducers, you will know exactly what I mean! You were losing right along and had cut your weight down by, say, 10 pounds, when you suddenly stopped losing. You kept your calories within the limit set, and exercised religiously, and nothing happened.

But you can lose! There is one thing the excess pounds can't resist for long, and that is a strict calorie count. Keep the calorie allowance down to two-thirds your energy requirements, and you are bound to lose eventually. In the meantime, you may be encouraged by checking your measurements. Often a change in measurements takes place even though no weight loss is apparent. It is heartening to know that measurements can, and do, improve over a two-week period, while weight loss may be at a standstill for six weeks. If you have exercised consistently, your waist and hips may be slimmer than you realize.

Weight can be gained even on a reducing program.

One fine morning you may find a sudden drop of the scales. This phenomenon is to be explained by the fact that you have been losing all the time, but the replacement of fat in the tissues by water prevented any change in weight. Water-retention is the reducer's continual bugaboo, and may bob up at any time during the reducing program.

You can always fall back on the fruit regime. An abundance of low-calorie fruits and vegetables at this season makes the regime an easy one to follow; and since it contains less than 800 calories, this measure is effective in the most stubborn cases. As you probably know, the regime contains no butter, cream, mayonnaise, meat, bread or eggs, and therefore should never be followed for more than three consecutive days. If you do not already have the fruit regime leaflet, send for it.

You could safely follow the regime two days out of every week until you begin losing weight again. After that, use 1,000 to 1,200 calories per day, depending on your energy requirements. No reducer should ever lose more than two pounds in one week, except at the very start of the program.

Stay with your diet, Reducers, and you will slim down beautifully.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—Friday afternoon, Miss Lena Madeline Phillips, who is president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, brought Miss Gordon-Holmes to see me. Miss Gordon-Holmes came over from England for the convention held in Atlantic City by the business and professional women.

The international federation is the largest group of its kind in the world, having about 200,000 members in 2,000 individual organizations. The federation has fostered world-wide interest in business and professional women and at the same time has taken a great interest in equalizing the status of women throughout the world. This year it is inaugurating a world-wide campaign to secure the appointment and election of a large number of qualified women to public office.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Collins also came to see me. He did a wonderful piece of work in the fields of English, dramatics and music in the Arthurdale, W. Va., school. He is now working in a small college in North Carolina on a very interesting educational project. Mr. Collins has a very interesting educational project. Mr. Collins has a very interesting educational project. Mr. Collins has a very interesting educational project.

Most of yesterday was spent at Vassar College. In the afternoon there was a delightful gathering in my honor, during which President MacCracken and I carried on a conversation over the air which could not have been of very great interest to the small fry playing around on the grass in front of us. They were the children of the members of the eugenics course. I thought they proved the value of their training by the fact that they were really quiet and managed to amuse themselves during what must have seemed an endless program without interest to them.

Judge and Mrs. Charles Poletti, who are occupying the warden's house on the campus this summer, invited a large group to tea after the meeting. Mrs. Poletti attended the course in eugenics, as that was the condition on which she obtained the house. Afterwards we had time to come home, dress and eat our dinner. Incidentally, we cooked it ourselves, for my faithful negro cook is having a week end in New York. We are having a grand picnic looking after ourselves. It is a very good thing now and then to be able to put her hands on anything when she returns, now that I have put everything where I can put my hands on it.

Back to Vassar in the evening to see a really exciting play given by the Federal Summer Theater, which has been working for six weeks at Vassar College.

It is one of a series of living newspaper plays and is called "One Third of the Nation." Next week I think it will be in New York. Similar plays on subjects pertinent to various localities will be given throughout the country. I hope they will interest other people as much as this play interested me.

SAVANNAH IS HOST TO 2 MAIL PILOTS

Atlanta Business Speeds Plans To Boost Air-Mail Week.

A postponed air mail survey flight via Savannah and Folkston from Atlanta and return was made yesterday by Pilot Ralph Lockwood and R. D. Hager, of Atlanta, air lines executive as preparations continued for celebrating Georgia Air Mail week August 9-16.

Bank and business house statements placed in the mails for first of the month distribution were stamped with the injunction "use air mail." During Air Mail Week letter carriers are to wear badges inscribed "Air Mail Week—Ask Me."

Other cities and towns of the state continued planning for record dispatches of air mail. This will be picked up next Monday by two planes. One will be piloted by Lockwood and the second, traveling from Folkston to Atlanta by Dick Fell.

Yesterday's test flight to Savannah was made a civic occasion in the port city. Mayor Robert M. Hinch, Terrence J. Brady, superintendent of mail and other Savannahans greeted the plane.

Lockwood and Hager were entertained at luncheon as the ship was refueled.

Fifteen-minute stops were made at Madison, Augusta, Macon, Cochran, McRae and Statesboro, with brief stops at Brunswick and Folkston.

CAPITOL PARKING SQUABBLE ENDED

Part of Area Will Be Restricted Under Plan.

The squabble over parking regulation around the capitol appeared near an end yesterday when Governor Rivers announced he would ask that part of the area be restricted and part non-restricted and Mayor Hartsfield said he would do whatever the Governor asked.

At present the entire area around the capitol is restricted to one hour parking, but the police have not enforced the regulation. Governor Rivers said yesterday that he felt that part of the section about the capitol should have a limited parking order so that persons having business in the capitol might be saved a parking fee.

The Governor said he would communicate his views to Mayor Hartsfield and the mayor said he would transmit them to Chief of Police Hornsby with the recommendation that they be put into effect.

It is expected that restricted areas will be Mitchell street, Hunter street and the no-restricted areas will be Washington street and the east side of Capitol square.

MAILERS' UNION CUTS TIES WITH AFL HERE

Withdrawal from the Atlanta Federation of Trades was announced yesterday by the Mailers' Union, Local No. 34.

Declaring by resolution that the rights of the union to choose its own delegates to the federation had been denied, the membership voted unanimously to sever the 25-year association with the central body of the American Federation of Labor here. Action resulted from the federation recently unseating A. Steve Nance, the union's representative, it was said.

The mailers stated they would remain out of the Federation of Trades "until such time as that body is willing to conform with its own laws and those of the American Federation of Labor."

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

HOME IS WHERE YOU CAN SAY TELL WITH THE JONES.

One of our readers who was trying to make her home a pleasant place to live in had sent a load of dewdrops to the S. A. and knocked the footboards off the beds without greatly disturbing her 19-year-old daughter, but when mother tried to set up a swing settee in the living room the daughter, I take it, gathered her hoop skirts and ran into the street screaming Help! Police! Fire! Mother's gone batty! Girls like that should keep a supply of camphor, catnip or smelling salts handy, and a rug to swoon on. In such a situation the mother should not abate one jot or tittle. If she purports to have a flying trapeze in the library, and her daughter manifests signs of shock, mother must go through with it at all costs, else the education of her daughter is a tragic failure.

Now, girls, we'll never get anywhere with this belated movement for home reform unless we first decide precisely what we intend to do and then do it at all hazards. Naturally it is hard for the children, after 18 or 30 years of whimsies and over-stuffed crime, to preserve their equanimity at first, but if you've chipped up the footboards and screwed firmly into the latter the hooks for your swing settee before the young'uns get home you are in a position to withstand the first storm of indignation. After all there is no law against living as you like as long as you pay your rent or taxes.

Another reader whose home is a tiny bungalow solves a vexing problem, yes, a health problem, by dividing the single bathroom into convenient sections. On one side of a passageway a cubicle contains, what's this quaint affair, oh, yes, a bath tub; on the other side a separate cubicle contains the other appurtenances of the toilet. As the reader puts it: "Any member of the family can soak as long as desired without holding up the whole place." There is something in the idea, I feel sure, though the thought of that tank or tub with a live corpse soaking in it depresses me so much that I can't recall at the moment just what it is. However, where there is need to conserve space, a roomy shower requires less space than a small tub. Then, too, in planning Odd House the idea is not to save the difference or to squander it but to spend part of what one saves in Joneses' drapes et cetera for shower and lavatory for each bedroom.

Awning of the put up and take down type are out at Odd House. If and when outside shades are actually necessary, Venetian blinds will be used, painted to suit the style and surroundings of the house. Likewise inside Venetian blinds will be used if window shades are absolutely necessary for any of the windows. The prime considerations at Odd House are Comfort and Health. Where sunshine is likely to fade things that can't stand sunshine have no place in Odd House. Sunshine, it must be remembered, even just diffuse daylight or skylight, is precious vitamin D at the lowest cost.

The ceremony followed the church service, with the pastor, the Rev. W. Lee Cutts, assisted by the Rev. A. Julian Warner, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, officiating.

E. M. Brown, cousin of the bride, accompanied by the church organist, presented a musical program.

Miss Helen Brown, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a poudre blue chiffon street dress worn with a poudre blue silk crepe turban and matching accessories. Her flowers were pink roses.

The bride entered with her father, W. C. Brown, by whom she was given in marriage. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Lamar Roberts, of Pinehurst.

The lovely bride wore a costume of white chiffon posed over white satin, and the dress featured short, puffed sleeves, a pleated ruffle at the neckline and a full, circular skirt. She wore a white silk crepe turban finished with a veil, and her bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mr. Caswell and his bride left for a wedding trip to Neels Gap, the bride traveling in a two-piece dark blue crepe suit worn with a yellow crepe blouse and navy blue accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Caswell will reside at 1412 Beattie avenue in Capitol View.

140 DIVORCE PLEAS HEARD BY JUDGES

Two Jurists Handling Calendar of 450 Uncontested Cases Here.

Fulton county "liberty courts" swung into action yesterday as two judges went to work on a divorce calendar of 450 uncontested cases.

Judge Virlyn Moore disposed of 110 cases, while Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy disposed of 30 before taking up superior court motion division matters.

Wives outnumbered discontented husbands by a wide margin. Drunkenness proved to be the chief cause for parting of ways with cruelty and desertion mentioned in several cases.

Moore expects to complete the calendar tomorrow, many of the litigants and attorneys being out of town yesterday.

Injunction Hearing.

Judge Pomeroy said yesterday that the long-standing controversy between Harrison Drain Tire Company and the county board of health over the type of septic tank that may be used in the county will be concluded today in the motion division.

The tire company now has a temporary restraining order preventing the health board from installing any action to prevent installation of the double-unit type tanks, made solely by the company, in Fulton county. The health board has passed a regulation forbidding use of the two-cell tanks on grounds that they are unsatisfactory and unsanitary.

Hearing on the company's plea for a permanent injunction against the board has been running for two days.

Negro Is Sentenced.

Two weeks of jury business in the criminal division of superior court began yesterday also as Judge James C. Davis gave Elmer Stanford, 20-year-old negro, two 12-month chain gang sentences to run consecutively. Amateur Photographers of Atlanta Get Cash for Their Sense of News

Constitution Pays Two Youths for Pictures Showing Accident Scenes; Another Atlantan Cashes in After Furnishing Tip on News Photo of Week.

Pictures tell the story and at a profit. Two Atlanta amateur photographers this week are several dollars richer by using their sense of news and recognizing the value of spot news as told by pictures.

Irving Rosen, 398 Parkway drive, and E. W. Stone, 2480 boulevard, both sold The Constitution pictures of a "bug" car wreck which they snapped with candid cameras. They received checks from The Constitution for their efforts.

These photographers came into The Constitution offices with their films within 30 minutes after the wreck. The pictures made all editions of the newspaper. Alertness and speed in getting excellent news photographs to The Constitution will always be liberally rewarded.

H. H. Jones, 423 Connally building, is in the personal adjustment business, but knows a news story when he sees it. He will receive a $5 check from The Constitution for the best photo tip of the week. He gave the tip on the six-month-old baby girl, Patricia Benefield, 338 Orange avenue, who smokes cigars.

Keep your eyes open for photo tips. The Constitution will pay $5 a week for the best. Tips must be news. If you see something or hear of some oddity you think will make a good picture and story for The Constitution, call the photo tip editor, Walnut 6565. If the suggestion has merit, he'll do the rest and you're likely to find a $5 check in your mail one of these Tuesday mornings.

ADVENTURE IN LOVE

By KATHRYN BEMIS WILSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

While Velma Wilkins is receiving guests for a dinner party at her home on Chicago's Gold Coast, Plunder Smith asks her not to delay longer in announcing their engagement. She hesitates, saying she is not thinking again of the difference in their ages—she is 35, but he is 25. He is insistent and as other guests arrive on her exclusive list, Virginia Dewey, the unattractive daughter of Harry Dewey, who has been in a mining deal with Wilkins. It is at her father's request that she has included Virginia. Velma knows that her father is not enthusiastic over having a son-in-law who is only 10 years her junior, but she is willing to go along with the plan. Velma takes another glass of champagne to fortify herself as he rises to announce his daughter's engagement to Smith, to her mother's dismay and to the relief of her father's attorney and an old family friend, who has come to his office. He has a difficult task ahead of him. She is the sole heir—but the modest fortune her father made speculatively has passed into the hands of Harry Dewey in whom Wilkins misplaced his faith. Velma doesn't even know the car in which she drove with Smith to the party. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

It would be a new experience. Probably, she thought, from now on, she'd be doing many things about which she had heard but had never attempted because of silly social barriers. She bought herself up with the hope that there would be adventure in it. She laughed a little scornfully. It might be adventurous for some girls to travel on a nearly flat purse; but for Velma Wilkins, erstwhile heiress of the important Reed Wilkins, the heiress to whom economy was only hearsay, it might be calamity.

Mary Eggleston insisted upon accompanying Velma to the bus terminal. She waved a tearful good-bye as the big automobile slipped smoothly out on the street. Velma smiled bravely from her seat by the window and tucked the cushion at her back at a more comfortable angle.

She sighed with relief. It would be much easier to vanish from the sight of her old crowd than to hang around Chicago to be ignored and left to read about their gay doings. She hoped Mrs. Clark and her family would lead a more quiet sort of life, but she didn't expect to find them idling in rocking chairs. She had always understood that Mrs. Clark, a wealthy widow, was prominent enough socially, although it must be in a small city manner. Velma wondered what the two daughters would be like and hoped that she'd get on with them.

The bus soon was swinging into swift pace along a clover-bordered highway. The breeze, blowing Velma's blond hair about her piquant face, still held some of its early morning coolness, it was sweet and fresh, and whispered indefinite soothing promises to her, in spite of the ache in her heart.

The seats were nearly all occupied. A young mother with a fretful infant on her lap sat directly behind Velma, a man in overalls in the seat ahead. A nervous little old man across the aisle began persistently to oggle her. She hoped he had not recognized her from the many recent newspaper pictures exploiting her bankrupt status. Or did she look like some foreign species of female? She was uncomfortably aware of being the best-dressed woman on the bus. "If these people who stare only knew the half of it!" she thought, suppressing her tears.

The little old man from across the aisle sank into the vacant seat beside her. She looked out the window, ignoring him.

"Goin' to be a hot day, ain't it?" he offered finally.

"Very," she agreed, intent on munching cows in a green pasture, black hogs surveying the world with bland indifference.

"Goin' far?" he asked conversationally.

"Far enough," she said succinctly.

This had immediate effect. The little old man heaved a discouraged sigh, got laboriously to his feet, and went up front to a seat behind the driver. Ignoring the sign squarely above the steering wheel, "Please do not talk to the driver," the fidgety old fellow staccatoed his political opinions at the back of the driver's head. The brown uniformed young man, responsible for the safety of a busload of travelers, evinced no particular interest in the stranger's overtures. His eyes continued to focus on the road ahead.

By no means discouraged, the old man wandered back down the aisle, settled beside a colored man to discuss loudly the automobile industry.

The bus went slowly through a hot dusty village and drew up to a filling station. "Ten-minute stop!" bawled the driver.

Velma gathered up the pile of magazines she had purchased in the Chicago bus terminal and not opened. If she meant to read them later, she'd better not leave them around as temptation for others to snatch. People had a nasty habit of snatching things from her lately!

She wandered into the stuffy little lunchroom. She opened her purse to pay for the chocolate bars and mints she had selected, and was astonished to see how few bills she had left. She never had known money to disappear quite so fast before. Now that she thought of it, how marvelous it had been that her father had accumulated so much of it, enough even to grant any of her extravagant desires which were unchangeable for money—and the majority of them had been granted.

A queer sensation of bewilderment surged through her. She shook herself into the semblance of a smile as she picked her way across the gravel drive back to the bus. She suddenly glanced up squarely into the pleasant countenance of a medium-height young man, who promptly returned her smile while raising his straw hat.

Velma colored furiously. She made a dash for the bus steps, loosening her grasp on the armful of the best current literature which scattered to the ground in all directions.

"Allow me," said the young man, closely behind.

Without waiting for her permission, he stooped to pick up the magazines, his bright red hair glowing in the sun like a live coal.

"Thank you—very much," said

Velma finally, holding out her hands for the books.

"Till carry them in for you," he insisted. "It's rather a load."

She set her teeth. This strange man had no right to throw himself deliberately in her path; he had no right to suppose that her recent smile had been intended for him.

"You're very kind," she mumbled coolly.

She ran lightly up the bus steps, went quickly down the aisle.

More passengers had arrived out of nowhere, and now the only unoccupied seat was the one next to Velma. The young man sat down in it, as a matter of course, still holding the magazines.

The bus driver started the engine. A horrid odor of hot gasoline and oil gushed briefly through the open windows. The bus gave a sudden lurch, and sailed like a great ship of state down the road.

"I could relieve you of those," Velma said, indicating her reading matter.

The young man gave fleeting appraisal of the short golden curls escaping her black sailor, the dreamy brown eyes fastened upon him. More color crept into her creamy cheeks. She stirred uneasily.

He asked, "Shall I put them in the rack?"

"Please," she replied, forgetting she had planned to discover what romance and good luck were doing to people in this month's fiction.

He swung the magazines neatly over her head, then seemed to become oblivious of her presence. "He's really not a smart-aleck at all," admitted Velma to herself. "He's aggressive—but not disagreeably so. It's the first time, though, I ever saw a good-looking, red-haired man."

The nervous old fellow across the aisle bunched up and weaved to the rear to fuss childishly with the paper cup holder by the cooler. "Whew!" he said to no one in particular. "That sun's hot!"

A little boy up front cried shrilly, "Ma—I lost my peanuts! Where's my peanuts, Ma?"

"Here—take 'em, banana an' set still!" commanded a weary female voice.

Dark clouds suddenly obscured the sun. A refreshingly cool breeze slashed through the humid air of the bus. A dozen swift flashes of lightning made Velma cringe. She never had enjoyed proximity to storms. This riding in a bus through electric flares was anything but reassuring.

"Too much breeze?" asked the lurid-haired man beside her.

"No—thank you," she replied, while pretending observation of hills on the far horizon.

She drank deeply of the exhilarating, moist air. It sent a wave of courage through her. Soon she would be in a new environment, forming new acquaintances, making new friends. The world was not treating her too roughly, after all.

It began to rain gently. Then abruptly it came down in a torrent. A sudden wind pelled it in through the window screen, slashing at Velma's face, wetting her black linen suit.

Without a word, the strange young man leaned over her and banded down the window.

Velma shot splashes of rain from her skirt, saying "That will be better—thank you again."

He smiled whimsically down at her. Their eyes held for a long moment. A slight tremor shot through her. "He has nice hazel eyes," she thought. She liked his firm chin, the purposefulness of his pose. He reminded her of no man she ever had met before.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

ADVENTURES OF GRIZZLY ADAMS.

III—Capturing a Cub.

It may seem strange that a skillful hunter should try to climb a tree to get away from bear cubs, but that very thing happened. Grizzly Adams ran away from two grizzly cubs, each a little more than a year old.

The man then got down, and went to a village where he obtained three Indian ponies. With two companions, also carrying lassos, he returned, and found the cubs still beside the body of the mother. Another effort to capture them failed, for they ran into nearby bushes and were lost to sight.

Later Adams and his companions went to lie in wait beside a spring, the only one in the valley. They believed the cubs would come there to drink.

It was a moonlit night, when they hid themselves near the spring. About midnight, the cubs were heard coming near. They ran past, put their noses in the water, and wallowed in it for a little while. Then they crawled out and began "tumbling and wrestling on the grass."

At this point, all three mounted men dashed forward, swinging their lassos overhead. The bears ran in different directions. Adams chased one of them a mile before he got close enough to throw his lasso. It was "no sooner over her head than she poked it off, and started to run again." Seven times the lasso was thrown, and the seventh time it held firm. The grizzly cub was bound firmly and taken back to camp.

Adams climbed a tree to escape the cubs.

The reason he ran away was that he did not want them to bite or claw him. Though young, they had the power to do damage. He might have shot them with his revolver, but he did not want to kill them. He wanted to capture them alive.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT

No 32

Presently the party came to a sombre, two-storyed bungalow. There they were joined by a guard of fierce, tall Amazonian and entered into a large room, hung with weapons, hideous and mummified heads of Woora's enemies, chiefly women warriors of Kaji.

Tarzan's eyes took in the horrible decorations of a sweeping glance, then turned toward the far end of the room where a lone figure sat on a huge throne, chair—a hideously repulsive figure with eyes that glared and burned as twin pits of Hell.

The Jungle Lord knew that he was in the presence of Woora. The old man stretched out the bony fingers of his right hand and rested them on the mammoth emerald that sparkled on table before him. Then Woora fixed his blazing eyes confidently on the prisoner.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Calmly Tarzan glared back. Woora frowned in consternation, seeking to bring the stranger under the influence of that terror which the sinister magician always inspired in everyone. But when he failed, he was seized with murderous hatred of the captive.
